Head Start

Fund Cut Hurting Program

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON

Wednesday's announcement that the federal government had again reduced its grant to the Ulster County Community Action Committee's Head Start Program will apparently forestall any plans for expansion of the county-wide assistance center.

The cutback now relegates UCCAC's Head Start budget to the "shoe-string" status. The damper has been put on plans to establish additional day care centers in Kingston and Ellenville; additional funding for the Plattekill Day Care Center appears virtually impossible and energetic plans to expand the entire Head Start operation are now considered impractical, if not downright impossible.

Reduction in funds for the Head Start Program have become a fact of life for UCCAC officials. "We had expected the reduction," said UCCAC Board member Douw S. Meyers Jr., "and we're not at all happy about it." "It wasn't a constructive move on the government's part," he added.

The importance of the Head Start Program to UCCAC officials was underscored when Meyers commented that "we wish they had decided to cut our budget some place else." "There has been plenty of pressure from the community to expand our Head Start services," said Meyers.

The full year Head Start Program has grown in popularity since its inception in 1967. It is designed primarily to help economically deprived pre-school children whose mothers work during the day. The youngsters are offered a daily program of activities designed to increase their language skills and perception of the environment.

In addition to balanced meals and between meal snacks, the program offers outdoor games and activities, field trips to local sites of interest and indoor games of creative activities.

At present some 60 pre-school children benefit from the program, a 100 per cent increase over the number of participants in its first year of existence.

The $113,050 grant announced Wednesday includes medical, dental, social and psychological services for children of impoverished families from most sections of Ulster County.

The Head Start Program, however, isn't the only phase of the UCCAC's activities that is suffering because of federal cutbacks. The $250,000 1971 operating budget, which represents a slight reduction from 1970's total, includes a variety of programs ranging from aid to Senior Citizens to an emergency food fund. Because of the cutback in funds, however, each of these areas will have to forego further development of any marked degree.

In addition to federal funds, the Community Action Committee receives grants from the county, City of Kingston and several municipalities, including Ellenville and the Town of Wawarsing.

Wednesday's grant, approved by the Office of Economic Opportunity, was announced by officials at the Washington office of Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr.

Contract Signed for the County Workers

SAVAGO, CSEA PRESIDENT JUDY MURRAY

(Freeman Photo by Haines)

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

A salary contract granting a 14 per cent increase over two years to 850 county employes was signed into law Thursday by Legislative Chairman Peter J. Savago, following unanimous approval of the Ulster County Legislature.

Under the contract, which covers the years 1971 and 1972, county employes will receive a seven per cent increase the first year and an additional seven per cent the second year. The contract, which includes numerous fringe benefits, was signed by Savago and Civil Service Employe Association President Mrs. Judy Murray.

A record number of resolutions were passed and two local laws were enacted by the Legislature including one which will aid senior citizens with low incomes. The measure provides a 50 per cent exemption of real property taxes for persons over 65 years of age with incomes of less than $5,000.

The second local law establishes standards of conduct for the officers and employes of Ulster County.

Most resolutions passed with unanimous approval with the exception of one concerning the appointment of trustees to Ulster County Community College which drew a party-line vote and one abstention from Legislator S. Robert Kelder (R-Dist. 2) who abstained because of his membership on the college board of trustees.

Another salary dispute still confronts the legislators . . . Story page 5.

The resolution, submitted by all 11 Democratic members of the board asked that in all future appointments to the UCCC board of trustees, that it is the responsibilty of the Legislature to fill, that the names of the trustee candidates first be submitted to the Community College Committee for consideration and review, before being forwarded to the Legislature for approval.

Dr. Gerald P. Gorman (D-City), spoke in favor of the measure saying it would aid the Legislature in screening candidates regarding their qualifications as well as their philosophies.

William West (R-Dist. 12), countered saying he thought "McCarythyism had disappeared."

Minority Leader Roger Mabie (D-Dist. 7) said he didn't put that interpretation on the question adding that he felt a committee screening would "forestall difficulties."

The recent appointments of Raymond W. Garraghan and Joseph F. Marr to the UCCC board of trustees, although both made unanimous, provoked controversy in the Legislature prior to their being named with "political" accusations arising from both sides of the aisle.

The Democrats' resolution went down to defeat 21-11.

One other resolution prompted discussion before being approved. Submitted by Savago, it called for opposing the enactment of any legislation granting exemptions from the payment of real property taxes to non-profit private housing projects.

Legislator Paul Brazier (D-Dist.) took exception to the wording of the measure saying that the phrase "non-profit" encompasses so many things. Asking that the matter be referred to committee, Brazier suggested that the resolution, as is, might bar such organizations as the Council of Churches and other organizations aiding the economically deprived.

Savago, in his resolution, states that the numerous exemptions which presently exist impose an undue financial burden upon non-exempt taxpayers, as well as units of local government having the power to levy real estate taxes.

In other business, the Legislature gave unanimous approval to:

- Adopting the New York State Career Retirement Plan for county employes.
- Authorizing the chairman of the Legislature to enter into a $127,385 contract for kitchen equipment for Ulster County Community College.
- Requesting the New York State Legislature to propose a constitutional amendment requiring the state to bear the full cost of all future state mandated programs imposed on local government.
- Asking Congress to pass a federal revenue sharing bill.
- Posting of property owner names in rural areas.
- Determining the feasibility of establishing a Drug Abuse Commission in Ulster County.
- Changing grade classification for Sheriff Department personnel in the Ulster County salary schedule.
- Setting the date of Nov. 24 at 7 p.m. for the public hearing on the Ulster County budget.
- Acceptance of Govin Bridge in Denning.
- Installation of time clocks by the County of Ulster.
- Transferring funds for settlement of an architect's claim against the UCCC Board of Trustees in the amount of $4,000.
- Making an agreement with the State of New York providing for snow removal and ice control on state highways by the county.
- Setting a public hearing for Nov. 24 at 7 p.m on a proposed local law to increase the salary of the County, Surrogate and Family Court Judges.
- Memorializing six Ulster County residents who have died in recent weeks: Ivan T. Ostrander, Highway Department employe; James T. Graham, field representative for CSEA; Orson S. Haynes, former chairman of the Board of Supervisors; Judge John M. Cashin, Percy Gazlay of Accord and Patrolman George Dougherty of the Kingston Police Department.

Central Businessmen Seek Shopping Plaza

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Central Broadway businessmen, taking a lead from their uptown counterparts, have petitioned the city for more parking space, but the midtown group has something more in mind, a central Broadway shopping plaza.

Edward Arace, president of the Central Broadway Businessmen's Association, outlined his organization's plans in a Freeman interview. "Basically what we have in mind," he said, "is a shopping plaza between Van Deusen Street and Van Buren Street. We'll do the building. We want the city to provide the parking."

The problem the two business organizations face are similar but the situations are not. Uptown is a concentrated business area within an about four-block area. The area the Uptown Businessmen's Association wants for parking, behind their stores on North Front Street, has already been designated for parking by the approved Uptown urban renewal plan. In addition, the uptown proposal for parking would only be for their employes, not their customers.

Special

Arace says midtown has parking for neither, but adds that new parking facilities would not solve the problem. "We're about five years past that," he says. "Several city administrations have promised us parking, but we need more than that. As we see it, this plaza idea is the only reasonable way to halt a rapidly deteriorating situation."

Where Uptown is concentrated, the Central Businessmen's area is sprawling, stretching more than a mile from East Chester Street to St. James Street. There are no urban renewal plans in that section of the city although there is a code enforcement plan underway but that is only for residential dwellings in sections of the old 10th Ward.

"We don't want an urban renewal project in our area. We want to pay for this ourselves."

Arace thinks the shopping plaza, located midway between Greenkill Avenue and St. James Street would be "a shot in the arm for the whole area." "People may not notice the deterioration when they ride down Broadway," he said. "But take a walk in this area. Store after store is vacant. Many of them didn't go out of business. They just moved away. I think if we get this plaza it'll revive interest in the whole area. People will move back in across the street and up and down the street."

Arace, who operates the Arace Electronics store on Van Deusen Street, has met with Mayor Francis R. Koenig to review his organization's plans. Three aldermen, Brian Smith (R-Third Ward), John Finch (D-Fifth Ward) and Titus Sims (R-13th Ward) attended the businessmen's regular meeting earlier this week and discussed the plans. Mrs. Florence S. Ludlow (D-Fourth Ward) has met with them a number of times.

Record $2.7 Billion Budget Asked for State Education

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)— The state Board of Regents today called for a record $2.7 billion education budget to meet the "critical financial situation" in elementary and secondary schools.

The recommendations—sent to Governor Rockefeller and the legislature—included increasing the state aid ceiling from $860 to $955 per pupil, and a hike in the state's share of education costs from 49 to 51 percent.

The Regents also proposed continuation of the $28 million a year program of aid to nonpublic schools by the legislature last year and the $41 million aid to private colleges law. The board made no comment on the controversial programs other than to note that private schools are also facing financial difficulties.

Increases in drug education funds and money for school desegregation programs were also requested.

The total Regents proposal of $2,739,099,860, is an increase of 9.6 percent over the $2.5 billion requested last year. The legislature appropriated only $2.4 billion.

The major proposals were:

—An increase in the per pupil aid ratio from $860 to $955.

—A two percent increase in the state share for minimum aid from 49 percent to 51 percent.

—A shift in the formula base from attendance to enrollment.

These first three items combined would cost an additional $110 million per year.

—Continuing aid to New York City on a borough basis, costing an additional $120 million per year.

In non-financial areas, the Regents again proposed encouragement of the year round school plan. The controversial plan was beaten in the legislature last year, but the Regents asked that it be again given consideration.

Additional Regents scholarships—enough for 10 percent of all high school graduates was recommended. In 1965 the number of scholarships was set at 18,840. It would now require 23,000 to maintain the 10 percent figure, adding $1.7 million to the budget.

The Regents proposed to more than double the state's budget for correcting racial imbalance in schools. Over 40 schools asked for $7 million last year, and the budget was limited to $3 million. The Regents asked for $7 million for the coming year.

A near-doubling of the present $1.1 million drug education program to $2 million was also requested. The funds will be used for training of teachers, expansion of curricular offerings, intensive health teacher training and grants for local drug education projects.

In its proposal the Regents noted there were heavy demands on state funds.

"Demands for mass transportation, welfare, health, public safety, environmental conservation, education and other services press on the limited revenues of the state," the board said in an introductory statement. "We want cleaner air, fewer crippling diseases, less crime, less ignorance, less poverty, but the achievement of each goal requires substantial funds.

"The best investment in the future, we contend, is a faith in the young and a support in their process of learning," the Regents said.

2,000 Feet Above Yosemite Floor

Dangling Pair Await Rescue

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (UPI)—Two veteran mountain climbers dangled 2,000 feet above the Yosemite valley floor today waiting to be rescued—one of them reluctantly—from the sheer granite face of the El Capitan.

Gathered atop the 3,400-foot peak were 19 expert rock mountaineers flown there Thursday by helicopter for a highly technical and dangerous rescue operation.

A park information officer said climber Warren Harding, 46, had sent down word he believed he could complete the hazardous climb and did not want to be rescued.

Harding and Dean Caldwell, 27, have been inching their way up the unconquered face of El Capitan known as the Wall of Morning Light since Oct. 19.

They had hoped to scale the glacier-polished wall by Oct. 31 but, with their bedding soaked by icy rains and their rations down to some beef jerky and a few candy bars, they said Thursday they did not think they could make it.

Harding, a surveyor from Sacramento, Calif., led a three-man climbing party in 1958 to the first successful ascent of El Capitan. A year ago, doctors told him he would never be able to climb again after he suffered a fractured leg in an automobile accident.

Caldwell, a Portland, Ore., photographer, made the first ascent of Willis Wal' on Mt. Rainier and has participated in five climbing expeditions in the Peruvian Andes.

During the three weeks Harding and Caldwell have been climbing the unconquered southeast wall of El Capitan, each has taken a bruising 40-foot fall and been saved by his partner.

Ranger Larry Quist of the National Park Service said the rescue effort would be exceptionally difficult because Harding and Caldwell were dangling from pitons driven into the underside of a massive overhang 1,000 feet from the summit.

"It's as though they were suspended from the inside of an overturned saucer," Quist said.

Harding and Caldwell were attempting to make the recovery less difficult by continuing their slow ascent, drilling boltholes and driving pitons into cracks in the rock to support themselves and their equipment.

Looking for a Purrfect Friday the 13th

It's black cat's day to shine. Friday the 13th, traditional bad luck omen, holds no terror for this other symbol of superstition. For those who pay attention to things occult, this is a day to stay away from black cats, ladders and broken mirrors so as not to compound the ills brought on by the calendar combination. If it is any consolation, this is the last of the Friday the 13ths for 1970. The two previous ominous dates were in February and March. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Ulster Closing Gate to Kingston Garbagemen

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN
LAKE KATRINE

Ulster Town Board advocated strong action Thursday night to halt or discourage what has been described as a health hazard in a landfill operation involving the disposal of the City of Kingston's garbage.

Supervisor Carmine Sabino described the condition as "deplorable" at the Gerlack landfill near Jockey Hill which is in both the own of Ulster and the Town of Kingston.

It was reported at the Town Board session a Lake Katrine Grange Hall that sanitation collectors for the City of Kingston are dumping raw garbage at the Gerlack site and it is not covered as prescribed by state health law. Supervisor Sabino said at a recent inspection of the site, garbage was found dumped along the shale road, an extension of the deadended City View Terrace and rats were running around all over the place.

To halt the cartage of City of Kingston garbage beyond the deadend point Ulster Town Board ordered the construction of a barricade at the deadend.

Sabino said the alleged landfill site is owned by the Gerlack Estate and is used by Leo Darwak, operating Kingston Sanitation Service and Philip Gerlack. Gerlack is dumping in the Town of Ulster and Darwak is dumping in the Town of Kingston, he said.

There is another access to the landfill from the Jockey Hill Road but this involves about five miles of bumpy shale road, Sabino said.

The Ulster supervisor noted that the County Health Department is aware of the situation but has not been able to come up with a solution as there is no available earth to cover the garbage on a daily basis as required by the state health law governing landfills.

Reports on trailer violations and the issuance of summonses to ultimately seek injunctions against the violators of the town's trailer law were presented by Town Attorney William Pretsch.

Pretsch's report noted that Stoll Court, a trailer park on Morton Boulevard and another trailer site on Columbia Street were operating without trailer permits and in addition were not meeting distance requirements in the law.

Attorney Jospeh Hill appeared for Thomas Riccardi, who was advised that his application for variance in July contained some incorrect information. The variance was granted to permit installation of one trailer on a 70-foot lot where an 80-foot minimum is required. This matter will be discussed at a special meeting of the Town Board, the town attorney and Hill.

Katrine Realty at Lake Katrine also was issued a summons which notes the firm was still in violation because it has not secured an occupancy permit required by town law and the septic system is not functioning properly.

Supervisor Sabino reported that the Sewer Improvement District has received an initial check from the state for $85,500, an advance to provide funds for initial expenses for the sewer project.

Prior to the meeting a public hearing was held on the proposal to permit senior citizens to earn $5,000 annually instead of the $3,000 limitation to be eligible for partial property assessment exemption. This was approved unanimously and became Local Law No. 4.

The board further adopted a code of ethics for town officials controlling gratituties and other conflicts of interest and this became Local Law No. 3.

Rotron Lays Off 125

WOODSTOCK

Rotron announced that effective today approximately 125 employes were laid off. This layoff has occurred because of a slowdown in incoming orders due to the general softness in the electronics industry, a spokesman said. Rotron normally employs approximately 750 people.

Charles J. Lawson Jr., president of Rotron, said that he felt optimistic about Rotron's long-range future and its position of leadership in the electronics market. He, therefore, expects orders to begin increasing as soon as the general economy becomes stronger.

Lawson also said that employes laid off today will be subject to recall, based on seniority, as soon as business conditions improve.

Revised Saugerties Budget Adopted

SAUGERTIES

Saugerties Town Board adopted its 1971 budget totaling $549,519.38 at the regular meeting Thursday night which was revised $500 downward in setting the salary for the budget officer at $1,500.

The preliminary budget set $2,000 for the salary of the new position. There was considerable discussion on the matter at a budget session Tuesday night and agreement was reached at $1,500. Also at the session Walter Johnson was appointed multiple residence and trailer inspector at $2,500. As this position is not in the budget, it is assumed that he will be named building inspector when the town's building code ordinance is adopted. Supervisor A. Michael Schovel nominated Joseph Walbroehl for the post and Councilman George Turner named Johnson. The vote went for Johnson 4 to 1.

Supervisor Schovel read a letter from Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz advising that a federal court order now permits a municipality to receive payment of taxes now due from the Penn Central Railroad, which is in receivership under the state's bankruptcy law. The request for payment must meet certain specifications and be filed by Dec. 1 The matter was turned over to Paul Pavlovich, chairman of the Board of Assessors.

The matter of abolishing the position of town police justice was again discussed and it was reported that the current term of Acting Police Justice Robert Schirmer expires Dec. 31, 1971. A resolution must be filed with the State Legislature, which can abolish the post after both houses approve the bill and it is signed by the governor. The matter was tabled for the December meeting.

It was noted that Saugerties is now the only town in the state that still has a town police justice. Town justices now handle these cases.

An application for the position of dog warden was received from Donald E. Van Gorder of Barclay Heights. However, no action was taken. The post of dog warden is a new position and $2,600 is in the budget for the job.

A letter from the law firm of Schirmer and Carnright was read requesting information as to the status of the old Canoe Hill Road, whether or not it is a town road. Town Attorney Richard Overbagh said this would have to be checked. He noted that he believed the old road had been abandoned.

Ralph Bogert asked the Town Board if the town was planning to designate a snowmobile trail as the activity is becoming more popular in the town. He was asked to make the request in writing and the Town Board would check if there was any land suitable for such a trail.

Attorney Overbagh reported on an offer to settle a claim against the town by Elizabeth Wolfe of Glasco for $375. It was noted this was an old claim involving injury to the woman when she fell in a hole where a street sign had been. The Town Board approved the settlement.

Research Center Interviews Scheduled for This Area

KINGSTON

During the next few weeks, University of Michigan political scientists will be conducting a study of the attitudes, opinions, and voting preferences of United States citizens in this area and elsewhere throughout the United States.

This is the tenth in a series of presidential and congressional election studies conducted since 1948 by the Survey Research Center, a research division of The University of Michigan.

Ulster County interviewers are Mrs. William Whittle of Saugerties and Mrs. Bruce Winchell of Kingston.

Survey Research Center interviewers will be asking questions about such current subjects as the Vietnam War, campus disruptions, and perceptions and attitudes toward the political parties and their congressional candidates. Results of previous election studies have been published in books, in nationally distributed magazines, and in professional journals.

The Survey Research Center collects information on political, social, and economic opinions in 76 areas scattered throughout the United States.

SEN. GOODELL
. . . Denies Spoiler Role

Goodell Hopes White House Purge Over

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Charles E. Goodell denied Thursday that he had played the role of spoiler in the U.S. Senate election in New York State.

Goodell said it wasn't true that if he had dropped out of the race, he would have assured victory for Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, the Democrat. Many political observers have said Goodell—who ran a poor third in the race—insured a victory for Conservative James L. Buckley by splitting the liberal vote with Ottinger.

His own polls, Goodell told a news conference, showed him running neck - and - neck with Ottinger. Goodell said his votes "would not have gone to Mr. Ottinger, they would have gone to Mr. Buckley."

Goodell said he hoped the administration of President Nixon, which tacitly endorsed Buckley, would not try to drive other liberal Republicans from Congress.

"I would hope the administration would break off this attempt to purge," Goodell said.

The senator said Murray Chotiner, the Nixon political strategist, and others in the White House contributed to his defeat. These people, Goodell said, "want to polarize this country ... have no sympathy unless Republicans are in lockstep with the White House."

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has left "raw wounds," in Republican ranks, Goodell said.

Goodell hasn't decided whether he would support Nixon for re-election in 1972. Asked whether Nixon might be a one-term President, he said: "I think he's very vulnerable at this point."

Goodell, who was appointed to the unexpired term of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., in 1968, began his session with newsmen paraphrasing Nixon's famous "last news conference" quote after his loss of the California gubernatorial race in 1962.

"You aren't going to have Charles Goodell to kick around any longer," he said. "Neither will the President or the Vice President."

His plans for the future are uncertain. "I've got to make a decision how I'm going to feed my family first," Goodell said.

Promising "to remain a Republican as long as I can," Goodell nonetheless said "all options are open" with respect to a possible return to public life through a third party coalition of liberals within New York's two major parties. However, he said he had "no plans" to seek elective office again.

He was "skeptical but hopeful" about Buckley's future in the Senate, and called the New York Conservative "an intelligent man, a gracious man, a thinking man," adding that he hopes Buckley will shift his political thinking to a more moderate position.

He criticized the New York Daily News polls, which had showed both Governor Rockefeller and Buckley winning, saying the voter survey was "a reality unto itself. I would hope the Daily News would take another look at its poll," he added, "it has become a factor in how people should vote."

He said he did not expect Rockefeller "to move significantly to the right," as some have suggested. "His (the governor) political approach is one of pragmatism. He's not going to find solutions to problems on the right," Goodell said.

He said the governor "supported me from the beginning," and he expressed "disappointment" that Rockefeller chose not to attack Buckley.

But Spiro Endorses the Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In a major assessment of GOP strategy, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has strongly endorsed the much-criticized campaign waged by the Republicans in the midterm elections.

"Where it fell short of our hopes," Agnew said, "I concede only that we undersold our message, for it was a good message for America and the right message for America ..."

In his first speech since the balloting, Agnew told a fund-raising dinner in his honor Thursday night that he rejected the idea the GOP campaign should have been "conducted only around the sterling qualities of our candidates.

"Well, that kind of noncampaign, in the face of such a dismal record, has never been before waged in America," the vice president said. "Those who urge it upon the Republican party are no friends of ours, and assuredly they are not friends of our President."

The $150 a plate dinner drew many Republican luminaries, including Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, eight cabinet members, and Mrs. Martha Mitchell,, who introduced Agnew.

President Nixon, returning from Paris, sent a telegram lauding Agnew as "one of the most able and dedicated Republican leaders I have ever known."

Agnew said the GOP "made political water run uphill" in the off-year elections and added "no thinking Republican should let professional detractors in or out of office brainwash him into thinking otherwise."

"In a Senate that has decided key issues by one to five-vote margins for the past two years, a two- to four-vote change is a parliamentary revolution," he said. Agnew concentrated his remarks on GOP Senate gains rather than losses in the House and in state governorships.

Hatfield Not In the Mood For Dumping

COMMERCE, Tex. (UPI)—Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., says Vice President Spiro T. Agnew practiced "the politics of revolsion" during the recent off-year elections. But Hatfield said Thursday night he would not be part of any move to dump Agnew from the ticket in 1972.

"Why kick him in the shins for carrying out his assignments?" Hatfield said.

The subject of Agnew's future was discussed by Hatfield and a group of East Texas State University students during a question-and-answer session following a speech in which Hatfield said the off-year elections were "a disaster for the Republican party."

Hatfield nominated Nixon for president at the 1960 Republican national convention and seconded his nomination in 1968 but said "I don't think I would be asked to do it again."

He severely criticized the strategy employed by Nixon in the recent campaign. He was especially critical of the "purge" against Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., in favor of the victorious Conservative party candidate, James Buckley.

He said this action will make it impossible for Nixon to rely on support on a purely partisan basis since the President already turned on a member of his own party.

"We had the greatest possibility of gaining control of the Senate that either party has had for years," Hatfield said. But, "We went out to find what people were most upset about and blamed it on the Democrats."

He said Agnew called this strategy "positive polarization."

Another way of putting it, Hatfield said, was "divide and conquer."

The Women Scorn Fickle Advances

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a coalition of women's groups scorning the latest advances of a fickle Senate, the struggle for greater constitutional guarantees against sex discrimination apparently has fizzled in its most promising year.

Leaders of women's rights organizations declared Thursday they'd rather leave things the way they are than settle for Sen. Birch Bayh's substitute for the no-holds-barred amendment that whistled through the House weeks ago.

After the women's news conference, a spokesman for the Indiana Democrat said their failure to support Bayh's last-minute plan to rescue some semblance of the amendment meant, "As far as we're concerned, it's dead."

Bayh originally led what appeared to be an easy fight to pass the House version, but many of the 80 other senators officially listed as sponsors of the measure had second thoughts.

When it became obvious it could not pass the Senate—as it had twice before in years when the House balked—Bayh set out to find a compromise.

The Bayh substitute is the first order of business for a returning Senate next week, but it apparently will be removed from the calendar without protest.

The original version of the amendment reads simply that "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any state on account of sex."

Bayh's proposal calls instead for extending the 14th Amendment's equal protection clause to sex discrimination cases, but also would "recognize the need for a flexible standard in cases where different treatment under the law may be justified."

Women's groups object the added language would prove an excuse to continue discriminatory practices, particularly in employment.

The original version was introduced 47 years ago. In recent times, it was mostly the hostility of Judiciary Committee chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., that prevented it from reaching the full House until this summer.

Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., won support of two-thirds of her colleagues to force Celler's committee to discharge the proposed amendment for the victorious House vote.

Finding fault with the Bayh substitute Thursday were officials from the National Woman's Party, the National Organization for Women, the President's Task Force on Women's Rights and Responsibilities, the Citizens' Advisory Council on the Status of Women, and the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Chile Links Up With Cuba

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Marxist President Salvador Allende announced establishment of full relations with Havana Thursday night, breaking an Organization of American States (OAS) quarantine of Cuba.

In a national television broadcast on his ninth day in office, Allende said Chile was re-establishing diplomatic, consular, commercial and cultural relations with the Fidel Castro regime. He said the OAS sanctions were illegal and unjust.

Among the OAS states, only Mexico and Jamaica previously recognized Cuba. Mexico never complied with the quarantine and Jamaica had established the relations before becoming an OAS member.

The military governments of Peru and Bolivia have hinted they are considering ties with Cuba, but have not acted. Venezuela has also indicated it might take such a step but would do so only after consultations within the OAS.

HAPPY 85th — Daniel P. O'Connell, last of the oldtime big city political bosses, celebratets his 85th birthday today. He has led the Albany Democratic organization for 50 years during which Republicans never won a city election. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Albany Democratic Boss

Dan O'Connell Still Powerful at 85

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) —One of the last of the old time bosses is still around, is still in power and today observes his 85th birthday.

He is Daniel P. O'Connell, the "Uncle Dan" in the old hat who has, since 1919, headed the Albany County Democratic organization which has never lost an election in the city of Albany.

Republican governors in this capital city have declared war on the O'Connell machine, and Dan came out the winner. The deepest threat come in 1944 from former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who succeeded in cleaning up much of the vice that had been allowed to run wide open, but failed to bring a single indictment against any local politician.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has made peace with the organization and has worked closely with Mayor Erastus Corning II, who has been O'Connell's chief lieutenant since he moved into city hall in 1941. Corning, who is the nation's senior mayor in terms of service, is O'Connell heir apparent.

If anything O'Connell is stronger politically on his 85th birthday than he has been in the past few years. The machine suffered its only major blow four years ago when it lost elections in areas outside the city for the area's congressman, county district attorney, two state assemblymen and a state senator. This November Democrats won back the congressman and one Assembly seat, and staged aggressive races in the other contests.

Unlike flamboyant bosses in other cities, O'Connell runs his organization out of the spotlight, leaving most of the public announcements to Corning. He seldom allows interviews, and there are few recent pictures of him available.

Most of the time O'Connell, an avid Civil War buffa, can be found at home, either at the simple frame house near his south end birthplace, or a modest camp in the mountains a few miles outside Albany. He emerges from hibernation once a year, wearing the same crumpled brown hat for an appearance at the party's pre-election victory rally at Albany's Polish Community Center.

O'Connell makes no speeches, but over the years reporters and party faithfuls know there is one question he'll answer—"How will the elections come out?"

"As usual, as usual," is his firm gruff reply with a slight smile and a nod of the head.

A trip around Albany will give an idea of how O'Connell has maintained control. In a large park near the Capitol 25 elderly men rake leaves at a leisurely pace. For the Democrats it's an easy way to make friends, and less costly to the taxpayers than more expensive equipment.

There are tales of the "$5 vote" in Albany after every election. Grand juries, even one under a Republican district attorney, never brought an indictment.

Former Congressman Leo O'Brien commented to O'Connell one day how he resented newspapers refering to Dan as a "boss."

"He looked at me and said, 'But O'Bie, what should they call me?'" O'Brien said.

Gas Rate Hike For Area Utility

ALBANY, N..Y (UPI) — A recommendation that Orange and Rockland Utilities, Inc., be permitted to increase gas rates $1.8 million was reported today by the Public Service Commission.

In a report filed by Examiner Mannie Lieberamn, the "rate of return" of about 7.5 percent was considered "reasonable and proper." The utility had sought an increase of $2.1 million, or about 16 per cent more than recommended.

The report is now being served on all interested parties. They have 20 days to file exceptions and an additional 10 days will be allowed for rebuttal briefs.

The utility provides natural gas to about 65,500 customers in Middletown, Port Jervis and other communities in Orange and Rockland counties.

Housing Is Topic At Paltz Meeting

By BRUCE KAUFMAN
NEW PALTZ

A question pertaining to housing was the major topic of discussion at the regular meeting of New Paltz Town Board here, Wednesday night.

However, the discussion was limited to a relatively minor modification of the building inspector's authority and did not touch on the more controversial request put forth by this same town official at an earlier meeting, concerning the formulation of a town housing code.

The Town Board initially discussed a recommendation by building inspector, Art Pritchet, to formulate a strict town housing code at a heated public meeting in September. The basic thrust of the proposal was to tighten up the minimum standards for housing in the township and to establish guidelines to curb multiple occupancy of single family groups.

Some residents at the September meeting interpreted this proposal as a move to further curtail the limited housing available in the town for students attending the State University at New Paltz and a direct attack on communal living arrangements.

Town officials denied such intentions, upholding that if such a code were adopted it would not be directed against any particular group.

Nevertheless, for somewhat different reasons, the town has decided not to act upon the housing code proposal and did not even mention it at their Wednesday night meeting.

Contacted later, New Paltz Supervisor Anthony Moriello told The Freeman that the prevailing opinion of the board was that these restrictions would create an "unwarranted invasion of privacy against all residents of the town."

"The proposal raised serious question as to how far government should become involved in someone's home." Moriello said. "We don't think that a municipality should be in a person's bedroom."

Moriello said that the proposal has been indefinitely tabled and that there are no plans to bring it up again in the foreseeable future.

The supervisor did, however, acknowledge that the housing problems in New Paltz were increasing and that the Town Board would continue to explore courses of action to curb the problem.

Moriello said that the Pritchet, a full-time town employe, has been instructed to strictly enforce existing state and county housing codes. He also noted that the town officials have been meeting with interested groups, such as the New Paltz Senior Citizens and SUNY administrators, to explore positive approaches to the housing problem.

The modification of the building inspector's authority approved at the Wednesday night meeting involved the procedures surrounding the electrical inspection of newly constructed buildings.

By a unanimous vote the board adopted a resolution authorizing the electrical inspector to submit a copy of his investigation to the building inspector, a practice which has not been done in the past.

According to Supervisor Moriello, by keeping a permanent record of these inspections on file, the property owner will be better protected.

Two Public Hearings Scheduled in Rhinebeck

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK — The Town of Rhinebeck will hold two public hearings in the near future, it was decided at Thursday night's Board meeting.

The final zoning hearing will be held by the board Nov. 24. The three previous public hearings were conducted by the Planning Board.

It is anticipated that the Town Board will take some action on the zoning following this hearing. There have been numerous changes resulting from public pressure over the past year, with the reduction of minimum acreage size by 50 per cent the major innovation.

The other hearing deals with community antenna television, and is tentatively scheduled for Dec. 10 in a joint meeting with Village of Rhinebeck officials.

Some communities in the Northern Dutchess area have already signed the final contract with Kingston Cablevision for service, and it is expected that all will have signed by Jan. 1.

Revenues to the town will be three per cent of the rental fees and three per cent of gross advertising revenues from that particular municipality.

Supervisor William Allen read a letter from the Citizens' Drug Action Committee of Dutchess County asking for a vote from the Town Board in favor of locating a chapter of Daytop Village in the county. The Board elected to investigate the nature of the narcotics addict center before making any recommendation.

Mrs. Otto Stickle was appointed to represent the town in the Public Information Committee concerned with solid waste disposal on a countywide basis. She is a private citizen.

Cove Road in the Vandenberg developement was accepted by the Board after a lengthy discussion balancing the cost to the town of maintaining the road and the aspect of attracting further such development to the town.

Allen said he felt the town had a "moral obligation" to accept the road, as all stipulations had been lived up to and also that banks would not give mortgages to prospective builders until the town accepted the road.

Councilman Louis Asher at first said that the road had only one completed house thus far, and would not support the services needed. He later capitulated.

It was decided to ask Highway Superintendent George Wyant to have the stone pillars at the intersection of Astor Drive and River Road moved to allow school bus and fire engine access. They are presently too close together, as put there about 100 years ago, for school buses to turn the corner.

And the Town Board overrode a suggestion from the Planning Board that a trailer variance be given to the Raymond family on Route 199. Allen said it was a "hardship case," and the variance was granted.

The Town will advertise for bids on a 4-wheel drive Ford snowplow for sale. It may be inspected at the town dump.

Allen said that the town "came out of it pretty good" on Halloween, thanking the temporary deputies. Two constables had their car tires slashed, but no major mischief was perpetrated.

Some Mixed Reactions On PERB Hearing

KINGSTON — While the Faculty Association of Ulster County Community College lauded Monday's public hearing as a "final chance," Peter J. Savago chairman of the Ulster County Legislature scored state agency intervention in the contract dispute.

The mixed reactions came on the heels of the announcement by Public Employes Relation Board that a public hearing would be held Monday afternoon if differences between faculty and county legislature negotiation teams had not been resolved by that time.

In a bulletin issued on campus Thursday, the Faculty Association viewed the hearing as a "final chance for a peaceful solution."

Savago said he could see no reason for the public hearing in the contract dispute. "I think it is out of PERB's jurisdiction. I think it is ridiculous and won't accomplish anything. It will just compound the problems," he added.

In the Faculty Association statement it was noted that PERB sometimes holds "show cause" hearings to determine why the results of the previous fact-fining efforts have not been followed through. "This hearing goes further than that. It represents an effort by PERB through its prestige and good offices of its chairman and board members to devise and effect settlement."

Savago charged that PERB was "pressuring" the county legislature saying "their authority is mediation." The county legislature chairman also contended that the 2 p.m. time of the hearing would not allow attendance of many people concerned with the issues as it will be during working hours for the majority.

The faculty association said its aim is "reconciliation." They expressed a willingness to meet with county legislature negotiators tonight and through the weekend if necessary. "We would be glad to present PERB with a resolved situation Monday when the hearings open."

The PERB mediator Ernest Franke will be available for tonight's bargaining session as he has been at previous negotiations.

PERB in calling for the public hearing on Monday cited concern with the situation at UCCC. The dispute has been dragging on for several months with charge and counter charge from the parties involved.

During the past few days the threat of a faculty strike was renewed. Strike had been a threat at the beginning of the fall semester also. However, in the Faculty Association bulletin it was stated that the "drastic job action" would be deferred in light of the hearings.

Board Hearing In Red Hook

RED HOOK — Red Hook School Board President Francis Rabbett reported that 54 persons had a "good discussion" on the proposal to ease the real property tax burden for senior citizens with low incomes at a public hearing Thursday night.

The school board hearing was conducted by Rabbett, who noted that "mostly older" people were represented, in favor of the increased tax benefits, but that some opposition was voiced by several younger people and by several farm owners.

The new state law allows districts to give a 50 per cent discount to persons 65 or older on their property taxes if they earn less than $5,000 a year. It used to read $3,000 a year. The Red Hook district has neither law in effect.

No decision was reached by the school board Thursday on the proposed tax break.

Rabbett said that an estimate made on the effect the $3,000 figure would have in the district is the "one per cent of the assessed value" would be taken off the tax rolls. This would presently increase the assessed valuation about 81 cents per thousand dollars.

Spokesmen for the farmers argued that the farmer was already hurting from the real tax bite, even though incomes fluctuated wildly in farming and the land often lay fallow, producing no income for a year or more. They favored what they termed a more equitable form of taxation.

Surrogate Court Ruling On Bacharach Estate

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON — A year-long court battle over the $626,469.22 legacy the late Miss Lillian Bacharach left the Ulster County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and Kingston Hospital ended in Surrogate Court recently with the legatees agreeing to give $1,000 each to the five relatives who laid claim to the estate.

Two nephews and three grandnephews of the 85-year-old Kingston resident who died July 11, 1969, contested the will claiming that Miss Bacharach was not "competent" and that her will was "procured by fraud and undue influence of a person or persons unknown."

The will bequeathed $5,000 each for the nephews and $3,000 each for the grand-nephews. The five will receive the amounts stipulated plus one-fifth each of the $2,000 agreed upon by the society and the hospital.

The case, which had been scheduled for trial, was settled Nov. 5 before Surrogate Arthur A. Davis Jr.

Miss Bacharach, daughter of the late Levi and Eva Rice Bacharach, who resided at the Gov. Clinton Hotel, also left $10,000 to Temple Emanuel. In addition, she mentioned others in her will including: Wiltwyck Rural Cemetery, $3,000; Mrs. Helen Aidala, St. James Street, Kingston, $500; Lenore Brown, 137 Washington Avenue, Kingston, $500; Miss Elise DeGraff, St. James Street, Kingston, $500; Miss Mary E. Smith, 124 Lucas Avenue, Kingston, $1,000 and "all my jewelry, wearing apparel and personal effects.

Kingston Trust Company was the executor and Levine and Levine of Liberty represented Miss Bacharach's relatives: her nephews, Alfred Bachrach of Pasadena, Calif. and I. Arthur grandnephews, Irving Bachrach Bachrach of Fairbault, Minn.; of Los Angeles, Calif., Dr. Howard Bachrach of Southold, L. I., and Joseph Bachrach of Fairbault, Minn.

Tri-Valley Voters Approve Bond Issue

GRAHAMSVILLE — Taxpayers in the Tri-Valley Central School District, overwhelmingly approved a $2,380,000 bond issue to finance the construction of a new elementary school in a special district-wide vote here Thursday.

With the attendance light because of inclement weather, the taxpayers approved the bond issue by a 241 to 89 vote margin.

The district, which currently maintains one facility, a K-12 school in Grahamsville, encompasses six townships in Ulster, Sullivan, and Delaware Counties.

The new school, which is hoped to be completed by Sept. 1972, will be used for grades K-6, while the existing facility will house grades 6-12.

The new school which will be constructed on a site 240 feet from the present school, will contain 21 classrooms, and will feature a connected lobby, cafeteria and multi-purpose area.

According to Principal Edward T. Condon construction bids will be solicited immediately and groundbreaking will hopefully be made by this summer.

The length of the bond issue has not yet been determined, but it is expected to extend over a 20-year period. No state aid is involved because Tri-Valley is a flat grant district, with the average tax valuation per child more than double the state average, according to Condon.

Killed in Crash

SCHAGHTICOKE, N.Y. (UPI) — Carol Mason, 34, of the nearby Rensselaer County community of Valley Falls was killed Thursday when her car veered off Route 67 and plunged into the Hudson River.

State police said the accident occurred near the Stillwater bridge.

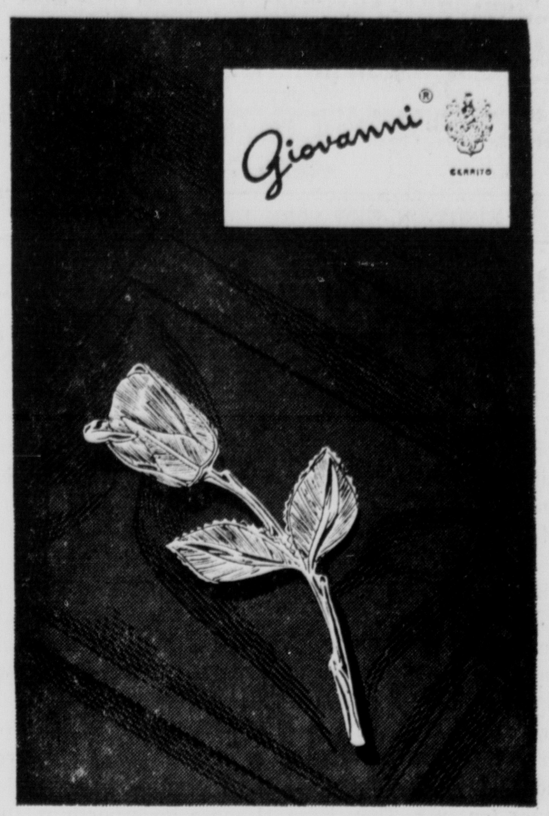

Three Injured In City Mishap

KINGSTON — Three persons were injured at 7:45 p.m. Thursday as the result of a three-car chain reaction accident that occurred on Flatbush Avenue east of Tietjen Avenue.

Police reported the cars were driven by Athanasios G. Kovlos, 30, of 34 Kingston Terrace, George W. Baker, 48, of 72 Wurts Street, and Edward J. Feldman, 34, of Box 29, Ulster Park.

Baker and Feldman complained of neck pains. Alice P. Baker, 45, of the Wurts Street address, was treated at Kingston Hospital for head injuries.

According to police, Kovlos was traveling west on Flatbush Avenue when his car skidded on wet pavement and hit the rear of the Baker vehicle causing it to collide with the rear of the Feldman car. Baker and Feldman were stopped waiting for the traffic light to change at Flatbush and Foxhall Avenues at the time of the mishap.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 13, 1970

Building Blocks for 1972

Throughout the recent campaign, the emphasis was on control of Congress, and particularly the Senate. The campaign for the state houses was a secondary issue, left to the local contenders and their cohorts. This was probably the worst mistake of the Nixon-Agnew off-year political blitz. For the turnover of a dozen governorships, usually with control of the legislature, is a result that will affect the politics of the entire decade, for they will apportion the changed representation districts of Congress under the new 1970 census, for the next 10 years.

The statehouses are the building blocks of the presidential election of 1972. Controls of the state capitols furnishes the basis for party maneuvering in the national election two years hence. The Republican loss of a fourth of the states houses, which together with the carryover governors will give the Democrats a preponderous of governorships, brightens their presidential picture for 1972. They have 11 more governorships and a majority for the first time since 1964.

At the same time, the Republicans scored some notable state house victories. They retained the two biggest states, New York and California, through the victories of Nelson A. Rockefeller and Ronald Reagan, respectively. They also won Tennessee for the first time in 50 years and they swept Connecticut, where they won both the governor's chair and the senatorial seat.

Among the notable Democratic gains were electoral-vote-laden Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Wisconsin, as well as Florida and Arkansas, where Claude R. Kirk Jr. and Winthrop Rockefeller, respectively, had made Republican beachheads in Southern territory but failed to hold on to them.

The President's communications director, Herb Klein, made the classic low-key comment on the gubernatorial race, when he said, "I think we can honestly say we would have liked to have done better in the governorships." That was the understatement of the campaign.

Amnesty and Treatment

With 89 deaths from narcotics abuse in the Army, in the first 10 months, of this year, 25 confirmed and 64 others suspected by doctors, the Defense Department has authorized a far-looking new policy. Instead of court-martials and punishment, men who voluntarily come forward asking for help will be given amnesty and treatment in the hope of rehabilitating them for further service or civilian life.

Furthermore, such men will be given honorable discharges so that they will be eligible for treatment in Veterans Hospitals stateside. The order is signed by David Packard, Under Secretary of Defense, so as to apply to all the military services, and in order that all will benefit by the experience the Army has had with drugs and treatment. The action taken in each case will depend on whether the individual is a drug experimenter, drug user, drug addict, drug supplier or casual supplier. Precautions will have to be taken to make sure that no one takes use or selling of drugs, to evade service.

The Pentagon also adjudges the drugs in use. Asserting that marijuana, for instance, is dangerous, it says it has no known beneficial use, that its use may produce visual hallucinations, pronounced anxiety and paranoid reactions lasting for hours. Drug usage, the order states, is incompatible with military service or subsequent civilian pursuits.

That the military has undertaken treatment of drug users in the service speaks highly of its humanitarianism and concern for these unfortunates.

First Things First

Recently at a medium-sized midwestern university, a weekend seminar called "Priorities for the '70s" was held on campus. Keynote speaker on Friday night was former Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon.

Morse gained considerable fame during his years as a senator, frequently voting in a manner that would make any liberal college student rejoice.

But renown flees fast. Morse showed up as scheduled. The only trouble was, despite plenty of advance publicity, only 75 students came to hear him.

Perhaps the fact that the university, recently turned coed, is uptight about open dorm restrictions explains the lack of interest in what Morse would have to say.

After all, priorities are priorities.

Sargent Shriver believes his brother-in-law, Senator Edward M. Kennedy, is "a bright presidential prospect for the next 20 years." That would make Ted 58, a pretty late age for a nominee. Only Truman and Eisenhower of the dozen presidents in this century were older at inauguration.

When the teacher cut his long hair in the schoolroom, Mario Montes, 12, of Indo, Calif. suffered emotionally and became despondent, his attorney contended. The teacher settled for $2,100. It was an expensive burst of temper for the teacher, but some hairstyles boys sport today can do that to you.

Comes Now the Pay-off

David Lawrence Says
Moratorium to Hold Line on Wages, Prices

WASHINGTON—When the Federal Reserve Board ordered a reduction in the interest rate it charges banks, it was the first time since April 1967 that this restraint on borrowing had been in the slightest degree reduced. It indicates a new trend in the economy—a desire to restore normal conditions. This means, of course, an expansion of the money supply so that many enterprises which have been delayed can be financed and the way opened to substantial progress in the creation of jobs.

The administration has been caught between two pressures. One is the desire to slow inflation, and the other is to try to avoid such a disturbance to the economy as might prove the forerunner of extensive unemployment. Apparently the Federal Reserve Board is convinced that a small decrease in the prime interest rate for banks now will not have a negative effect but, on the whole, will prove constructive.

For the administration today is confronted with the necessity of putting its whole weight behind an effort to restore prosperity in the nation. The unemployment epidemic has been spreading, and the moderate growth of the money supply is one of the factors that would naturally curb the start of new enterprises and hence prevent new jobs from being developed in various industries as well as discourage existing businesses from continuing work along accustomed lines.

Perhaps the biggest single problem has been the gradual diminution of public confidence and the feeling that the recession would spread. Many plans for new construction have been set aside because of the uncertainties in borrowing money. If it becomes evident that mortgage money will be less expensive, the economy will surely undertake many housing projects that have been temporarily suspended.

The administration has no more important task today than to put the economy back on the road. Not only have the unemployment figures been disturbing, but the alarming increase in the number of corporations forced to operate in the red has produced a wide feeling of pessimism reflected to no small extent in layoffs not only of lower-paid workers but also the higher-salaried as well. In many of the service businesses, executives have lost their jobs.

So the Nixon administration today will have to turn away from analyses of the recentl election and begin to think of what can be a political catastrophe for it in 1972 unless the next several months bring America an economic status more satisfactory than exists today. For one thing, the amount of tax revenue collected from individuals and corporations may prove surprisingly less than estimated if business is not substantially improved. So the federal government has a duty to pursue all powers available to it to stimulate business activities and remove the barriers to prosperity.

One of the principal obstacles to a balanced economy today is the high wage scales being imposed at a time when the high prices that are necessitated as a result deter the sales needed to meet such expenses. The time has come for the federal government to declare some form of wage and price "holiday" which will maintain for a fixed period a moratorium on changes in wages and prices so that the nation can overcome the handicaps of inflation.

The automobile strike is an example of how demands for high wages affect related industries and the economy generally. Settlement now has come but with a big boost in wage scales. The terms will mean a huge rise in costs to the automobile manufacturers, and certainly this will be reflected in the prices their customers will have to pay for cars in the next two or three years. Many of the companies in other industries will face strikes if it cannot meet wage increases based upon those achieved in the General Motors strike. The impact of a large strike on the public can hardly be estimated at this time.

More rigid controls may some day have to be imposed and some system of measuring productivity gains will have to be adopted, but thus far the government has steered away from intervention.

The real question now, however, is whether the administration can get "good times" back before the elections of November 1972.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Computers bug me. Their talents, their memories are maddening. I keep consoling myself that they are nothing if the fuse blows, but then, so am I. They now know what we look like and can draw pictures of us. They can do everything we can do, except one.

They can goof too. One computer sent a man a bill for four months in the amount of $80.00. He fixed the machine. He sent a check for $00.00. When you cash a check, a computer remembers the amount, and sends word to another bank to deduct it from the account of the signer.

Almost all computers, as I have written before, operate on two digits, 0 and 1. The zero is negative; the one is positive. The combinations of 0 and 1 are infinite, and could be translated into no and yes. Information is fed to the machine with the binary digits, but the result is more than remembering. It can take a complex problem and type the solution at the rate of 1,100 lines per minute.

There is an aircraft computer in the New York complex which can solve any of 34,000 types of aircraft trouble in one second. When you call for a reservation, a computer not only responds that seats are available, but will ask the reservations operator to find out if you want lobster or steak for dinner.

Another, in Washington's Smithsonian Institution, keeps track of scientific research all over the world. If a scientist thinks he has an idea for the cure of, let us say, cancer, he feeds his idea into the computer and the machine tells him that a doctor tried it in Prague three years ago and it didn't work out.

All computers have five basic sections: Input, which is knowledge put into the machine on punched cards and taped with zillions of 0's and 1's. Magnetic tape is the memory bank. Control represents the key an operator will press to ask the machine a question. An antenna or television screen is used for responding. Processing, which is the cross relationship of one problem to another.

A policeman spots a suspicious automobile. He radios the color, type and license number. Within seconds, a police computer combs its memory bank. If it finds nothing, it may, by cable, ask the master FBI computer in Washington. If it responds "Hit," the car is stolen, or wanted.

In New York, a man with a high school education told his qualifications and asked for a job at $2.25 an hour. The computer responded that a downtown company was looking for a man like him at $2.41 an hour.

Peter T. White, who writes for the National Geographic Society, tried to get fresh with a computer and was told off. He depresed a key and the machine pointed. "Hi," I am called Miss Teletype — what would you like me to call you?" "Peter." "Hello, Peter. Together we will learn the logic of a set of climate data on the globe." This was in answer to the question he had asked about average temperatures and rainfall.

The machine was too swift, too accurate, so White tried to double-cross it with a silly question. The machine typed: "Be serious, Peter." In response, he typed a bad word. "Goodness," the computer chattered. "Shame on you!!! watch your language or I'll cuss back at you."

A computer read a list of papers written by George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Alexander Hamilton, etc., and said that 11 of them, thought to have been written by Hamilton, had been written by James Madison. The computer was asked how it knew. The response was that Madison used certain words in his writing that Hamilton never used.

When Apollo 13 was limping in outerspace and millions thought the astronauts would never return to earth, a simulated command module in Houston fed the facts to a computer which told NASA how to bring 'em back alive.

While the computer may be solving hundreds of serious matters simultaneously, it can also do simple things, like feeding plus and minus problems to elementary school girls. After hard work, one girl was surprised to see the machine type: "16 problems with 94 per cent correct in 168 seconds. Goodbye, Sheila. Please tear off on the dotted line."

It's a comfort to know that computers get sick, they are scared to death of electrical storms and conk out cold. Drives them nuts. I supposed they type but HIT! HIT! HIT!...

Jack Anderson Says

Army Protects Medical Secrets From Russian Spies

WASHINGTON — In the struggle for status on the Potomac, it's the little things that count.

The clues to a general's importance for instance, can be found in his office. Is it large enough, say, for a battalion to pass in review? Does it contain a king size desk? A flag stand? A sofa suitable for taking naps? How deep do you sink in the rug? Is there a trim of woodwork around the walls? Enter a Pentagon office with this executive paneling, and you are dealing with a man of consequence.

But the most prized status symbol is a spy-proof conference room. Any general worth his stars likes to feel his conversations are so momentous that the Kremlin would stop at nothing to eavesdrop.

The latest to demand a "security room" of his own is Lt. Gen. Hal Jennings, the Army Surgeon General. Of course, he deals with medical, not security matters. Still, he feels he is as entitled as the next three-star general to protect his conferences from Soviet snooping.

The Army obligingly is preparing to spend $12,000 to spy-proof his medical conference room. General Jennings will now be able to discuss the menace of the tsetse fly with new assurance that the Kremlin won't be able to overhear him.

The requirements of national security would seem to be satisifed, however, by sound-proofing the walls and perhaps installing an alarm system. But this, apparently, would be too simple for a man of Jennings' standing.

He not only has ordered major electrical work, but he wants new film equipment and display boards brought in. Adequate air conditioning, of course, will have to be reinstalled. After the $12,000 has been spent, Jennings should have just as plush a "security room" as any general on his floor.

An Army spokesman, meanwhile, was unable to say what security matters the Surgeon General might talk about in his new spy-proof room. "that would be a violation of security itself," said the spokesman.

Footnote: After this column began checking on the project, a spokesman called to say that the bidding was being reviewed and the plans might be altered to cut costs below the $12,000 figure.

The Black Panthers have offered to send "troops" to Vietnam to help the Viet Cong gun down American boys.

The Central Intelligence Agency has picked up a letter that Huey Newton, founder of the Black Panthers, sent to the Viet Cong. This column has seen a copy.

"In the spirit of international revolutionary solidarity," wrote Newton, "the Black Panther Party hereby offers . . . an undetermined number of troops to assist you in your fight against American imperialism."

"It is appropriate for the Black Panther Party to take this action at this time in recognition of the fact that your struggle is also our struggle, for we recognize that our common enemy is U.S. imperialism which is the leader of international bourgeois domination.

"There is no fascist or reactionary government in the world today that could stand without the support of U.S. imperialism. Therefore, our problem is international, and we offer these troops in recognition of the necessity for international alliance to deal with the problem . . .

"Such alliance will advance the struggle toward the final act of dealing with American imperialism."

The International Red Cross has confirmed our reports about brutality, torture and inhuman conditions in South Vietnam's prisoner of war camps. The Saigon authorities, it should be added, are trying to halt the abuses.

Secret reports from Red Cross inspectors in South Vietnam cite details similar to those we published last August. We told how prisoners were tortured at interrogation centers and abused in prison camps.

At Tam Ky prison, for example, we reported that 50 to 100 prisoners were herded into crowded rooms with nothing but concrete platforms to sleep on. Since there were too many people to lie down, most prisoners had to sit or stand all night.

"All the torturing," we alleged, "was done in the interrogation center across the street. There was the usual electrical shock, beatings, sticking with pins, burning with cigarettes and, at times, water torture."

We also quoted Dr. Marjorie Nelson, who treated tortured prisoners at Quang Ngai prison. She swore: "Prisoners told me of being tortured by electricity... of being forced to drink concoctions containing powdered lime...and of being tied up and suspended by ropes often upside down from the rafters for hours... In August of 1969, I examined a woman seven months pregnant, who had been badly beaten the previous week."

American public safety advisers, who worked with Vietnamese officials in these prisons, generally have sought to prevent abuses. But at least one former advisor Jack L. Sanders, was himself "met with rejection and anger and told to either return to Vietnam or resign" when he tried to report prison conditions to the Office of Public Safety Administration in Washington.

The presence of American advisors in these camps gives the North Vietnamese an excuse to mistreat American prisoners in their custody. It should be pointed out, at least, that the South Vietnamese allow the Red Cross to inspect prison camps. The North Vietnamese, in contrast, make no effort to comply with civilized international rules on prisoner treatment.

South Vietnam Forces Are Set to Hit Foe in Laos

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The logic of the Southeast Asian war now makes stronger ground action against the North Veitnamese in Laos virtually certain.

But not by American troops.

Almost inevitably, South Vietnamese ground forces will find it necessary to make repeated intermittent raids (or sweeps) to interdict the Ho Chi Minh trails, destroy supply dumps and marshalling areas in southern Laos.

Predictably, these raids will be carried out from time to time during the next 12 months at a minimum—and possibly for the next two years.

These Vietnamese troops most certainly will have U.S. aid and assistance of one sort or another.

The Vietnamese actions and the American assistance will be covert. There will be no announcements of these actions.

The actions will center on (1) keeping the North Vietnamese off balance, and (2) at reducing arms deliveries so markedly that North Vietnamese troops in Cambodia and South Vietnam will be unable to mount major operations in either area in the predictable future.

With the blockade of the Cambodian coast and tightened patrolling of the South Vietnamese shoreline, the Ho Chi Minh trails and the upper Mekong River must carry an unusually heavy burden of supplies and replacements. Despite the publicity given the Ho Chi Minh trails in the past, the North Vietnamese have hitherto relied primarily on sea routes to the south.

Now the Lao trails and associated river routes are the one major loophole left through which Hanoi can keep the south supplied.

If this loophole can be drawn shut, militarily the major mainline Communist armies must gradually wither away in the far south, leaving principally the guerrilla units. (The situation may be quite different in the far north of South Vietnam, close as it is to the North Vietnam supply base.)

At this stage of the game, until considerable more groundwork is laid by the Communists, it is highly unlikely that poorly supplied Communist guerrilla units without the support of mainline armies can be a decisive factor in Cambodia, except in the third to a half of the country which is sparsely inhabited and those areas heavily populated by North Vietnames emigrants.

Guerrillas, however, can be highly effective in South Vietnam as the history of this conflict has demonstrated on many occasions.

But South Vietnamese armies, the regional and provincial forces and the local militia are much more suited than American conventional forces for dealing with traditional types of guerrilla activity, especially in a drawn-out conflict.

Even more importantly, the type of attack on guerrillas most likely to be successful is a steady improvement in economic and political conditions (and economic and political organization), an increase in the efficiency of police intelligence operations and the gradual reduction of corruption.

These are activities which require American advice and assistance. They do not require large numbers of U.S. troops.

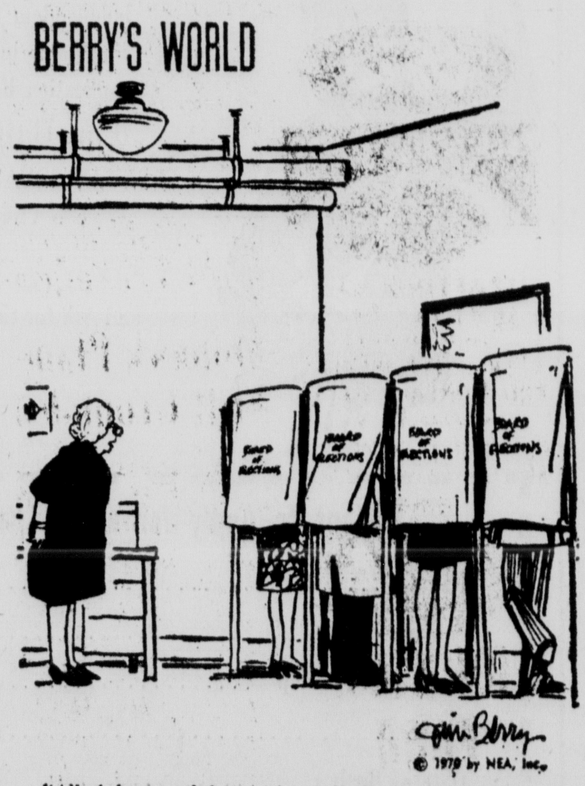

Therefore, if the Lao excursions by the South Vietnamese prove successful, the cutback in American military forces in South Vietnam could be speeded appreciably without serious danger.

City, County Fires Are Investigated

By WALTER S. CLARK

KINGSTON

Detectives and fire officials today conducted an investigation into two alleged attempts to burn down a 2-story vacant frame building at 383 Abeel Street.

Another fire that erupted in a migrant camp on a Modena farm late Thursday night also was under investigation by police. An unidentified farm employe reportedly received burns in that blaze.

Shortly before 1:30 p.m. yesterday, Kingston firemen in charge of Deputy Chief Harry Sills were dispatched to the Abeel Street unoccupied residence after fire was reported in the structure. On arrival firefighters found dense smoke pouring from the building.

The fire, officials said, was in the basement area. The flames were quelled with two 1½-inch pump streams from Engine 3. The property is owned by the Gottlieb-Rhinehardt estate, police said.

Firemen removed sections of flooring to check the travel of the fire.

At 11:47 p.m. Police Sergeant William Hanley notified fire officials at Central Station that he had received a call reporting someone was trying to set fire in the Abeel Street house. Fire and police vehicles were dispatched to the scene and on arrival they found fires had been started in cloth and papers in the first floor living room and a bedroom on the upper floor.

Both fires had burned out before firemen arrived. Deputy Chief Glyn Southard was in charge of the fire units.

Officials termed both fires incendiary and called upon police to assist in an investigation.

The Modena blaze occured in the migrant quarters on the Ambrosino farm on Route 44-55, according to a spokesman for the fire company, who said the blaze apparently was caused by an explosion of a gas container. Firemen in charge of Chief William DePew assisted by Clintondale volunteers quelled the flames.

An employe, who was not identified, sustained burns, it was reported. The fire is being investigated.

L.I.F.E. Drive For Scrap In Woodstock

WOODSTOCK

L.I.F.E., Living in a Fulfilled Environment, has scheduled a rag, paper and scrap metal drive for Saturday with a receiving depot set up at Bradley Meadow Shopping Plaza in Woodstock.

Items will be accepted from 9 a.m. to 12 noon at the plaza.

L.I.F.E. is attempting to encourage people to participate in a program of recycling materials that can be reused or made useful by physical or chemical change. The waste of paper and metals takes up land space at local dumps or landfills and depletes natural resources, a committee spokesman said.

Items that should be brought to the collection center are rags, neatly bundled, newspapers and magazines, tied in bundles; scrap metals such as iron, copper, brass, and aluminum. No garbage or tin or aluminum cans will be accepted.

The spokesman said that L.I.F.E. has not as yet found a scrap yard that can dispose of cans.

The cooperation of the entire community is sought in this project.

10 Days in Jail For Two Youths

PORT EWEN

Two 18-year-old youths were arrested Thursday night by Kingston State Police BCI officers on charges of criminal possession of dangerous drugs in the sixth degree.

They were booked a Rudolph LaBounty, of RD 5, New Salem and John Steven Baal, of Port Ewen.

According to authorities, BCI Investigators W. E. Beyea and F. C. Cooper were checking a car in which the youths had been riding, and one of the pair reportedly threw a paper bag from the vehicle. Examination of the bag disclosed marijuana and hashish, police said.

The two were arraigned before Kingston Town Justice Robert E. Ferrigan. They pleaded guilty and each was sentenced to 10 days in the County Jail.

Albany Man Jailed, Robbery Report False

CATSKILL

A 24-year-old Albany man was in the Greene County Jail today because he falsely reported to two state troopers that he had been robbed by three men on the State Thruway.

Leeds State Police reported that Troopers Stephen Blydenburgh and Matthew Reichert of the Albany detail were on patrol on the superhighway early this morning when they were stopped by a motorist identified as Franklin B. Adams of 102 Colonie Street, Albany.

Adams, police said, reported that he had been held up by three men and robbed of $250.

Subsequent investigation and questioning of Adams revealed the complaint was false.

Adams was arraigned before Town Justice George Carl. He pleaded guilty to a charge of falsely reporting a crime. He was fined $100 and in lieu of payment of the fine he was committed to the county jail.

Man Indicted For Possession Of Dynamite

LYONS, N.Y. (AP)—A young man, arrested Oct. 20 when State Police said they found 144 sticks of dynamite in the truck he was driving, has been ordered to stand trial on a charge of unlicensed possession of dynamite.

Douglas A. Bullock, 26, of Rochester, was indicted Thursday by a Wayne County grand jury.

Bullock also faces charges in neighboring Monroe County stemming from the theft Oct. 9 of 89 sticks of dynamite from a parked truck in Brockport, west of Rochester. He is confined to the Wayne County Jail here.

There have been several dynamite-bombings in the Rochester area recently, but police have declined to say whether they have linked Bullock to them in any way.

C-H Gets Okay On Borrowing

ALBANY

The Public Service Commission today authorized Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation to issue at various times through December 31, 1971 notes, bank drafts and prime commercial paper in amounts not to exceed $38,000,000.

Proceeds of the new borrowings will be used to retire an outstanding bond issue which matures next March 1 and to reimburse the company's treasury for money expended recently for capital purposes.

CHG&E, with headquarters at Poughkeepsie, provides utility services in areas on either side of the Hudson River extending from a point about 30 miles north of New York City to a line about 10 miles south of Albany.

It is now engaged in a construction program which will entail the expenditure of about $144,700,000 in the 1970-74 period, with $28,900,000 to be spent this year, $44,100,000 in 1971, $26,700,000 in 1972, $25,000,000 in 1973 and $20,000,000 in 1974.

Mohawk Planes Still Grounded

UTICA, N.Y. (UPI)—Mohawk Airlines remained grounded by a pilots' strike for the second straight day while no new negotiations were scheduled today.

Based in Utica, Mohawk is the fourth-largest regional carrier in the United States and the primary air service for short hops within New York State. It serves 87 cities in the Northeastern U.S. and nearby points in Canada.

Police Protest

Policemen were urged in a bulletin board announcement this week to attend the rally "to demonstrate to the people of San Francisco that the police ... are dissatisfied with the insufficient support given by the citizens of this city."

U.S. Jetliner Hijacked and Diverted to Cuba

NEW YORK (UPI)—An Eastern Airlines jetliner with 82 persons aboard was hijacked today en route from Richmond, Va., to Raleigh, N.C., and diverted to Cuba.

A spokesman for the airlines said its Flight 527, which terminates in Dallas, Tex., was expected to arrive at Havana Airport at noon EST.

The pilot insisted on landing at Jacksonville, Fla., to take on enough fuel for the flight to Cuba and the hijacker agreed. The plane landed at Jacksonville Airport at 10:22 a.m. EST, was given a full load of fuel and left 14 minutes later.

Authorities were not able to learn anything about the hijacker—or hijackers—while the plane was on the ground.

The plane was a Douglas DC9 twin engined jet. There were 78 passengers and a crew of four. The pilot also had been scheduled to land in Atlanta.

The airlines spokesman said antihijacking protective measures are not fully in operation at either Richmond or Raleigh. However, these stations are normaly equipped with magnetometers to detect concealed weapons and bombs and airline personnel are conversant with the so-called psychological profile by which potential hijackers usually can be identified.

The crew was identified as stewardesses Bonnie S. Culp and Diane E. Tiedge, all based Capt. Thomas W. Mayberry, and Copilot James E. King, and in Atlanta.

Personal Income Dips, GM Strike Is Cited

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Per-sonal income of Americans declined in October, partly because of the General Motors strike, the government reported today.

Another report said corporate profits before taxes showed an increase in the third quarter of the year.

The Commerce Department also said that new computations disclosed that the total value of goods and services produced in the county the gross national product — registered a greater increase in the third quarter than previously estimated.

The new economic reports came as the Nixon administration continued high-level conferences on domestic programs, also looking ahead to spending plans for fiscal 1972, starting mid-1971. President Nixon conferred at length with economic advisors going to and returning from the De Gaulle memorial in Paris.

The annual rate of personal income declined $2.5 billion in October to a seasonally adjusted rate of $809.2 billion. That compared with an increase in September of $5.5 billion and an average monthly advance this year of $3.5 billion.

Officials Give Up Pay Increases

SAWKILL

Several revisions were made by Kingston Town Board prior to adoption of its town budget totaling $43,828 Tuesday night.

It was not reported in the account of the special Town Board meeting in Wednesday's Freeman that three town officials voluntarily gave up salary increases and were willing to accept salaries they were receiving the previous year.

They included Town Justice Robert Ferrigan, Superintendent of Highways Roderick Stanfield and Tax Collector Hazel Burton.

Ferrigan receives $2,000. He voluntarily gave up a $500 increase and the highway superintendent and the town tax collector also voluntarily gave up increases noted in the preliminary budget.

Three Mothers File Suit on 'Violent' Film

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three Maryland mothers of small children have filed suit in U.S. District Court seeking to prevent the showing of a television Western series on grounds its violent themes harm children.

The suit was filed Thursday against the Washington television station WTOP and several other defendants, citing the television program, "The Wild, Wild West."

Judge John J. Sirica refused a hearing on a temporary order to cancel the program. He declined to take the case under jurisdiction before the court receives a full reply from all the defendants, pointing out that the defendants were not notified of the suit until the last minute.

The women, Mary Elizabeth MaGuire and Genevieve P. Connell of Chevy Chase and Margaret M. Graham of Potomac, said their suit was supported by the Foundation to Improve Television. They contended showing the program and its incidents of violence before 10 p.m. was a violation of "the constitutional rights of child viewers under the age of 18."

A 90-page brief submitted with the suit argued that studies had shown viewing violence in television and movies "instigates and intensified aggression in children, encourages actual violence and causes a desensification and predisposition to violence and aggression." Affidavits from experts were incorporated into the brief.

Spokesmen for WTOP said the station recently purchased a large number of old episodes of the show to broadcast as reruns. It is shown at 4 p.m. six days a week. Defending the showing, a spokesman said the show really was "a tongue-in cheek spoof of Western action melodrama."

Origin of Chemicals Under Probe

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — City officials say they are trying to trace the origin of potentially explosive chemicals that have been found in Jamestown's sewage system since May.

Richard Stahlman, superintendent of the sewage-treatment plant, said aromatic naptha has been detected in untreated water on occasion and that the plant has had to be ventilated to prevent a buildup of fumes.

A buildup of explosive fumes caused a fire that destroyed the City of Olean's sewage-treatment plant two years ago, he said.

Stahlman said there also has been dumping of zinc primer, a heavy substance that coats mechanical parts in the sewage system and impairs their operation.

A city ordinance in effect three years forbids the dumping of combustible wastes into the sewage system.

St. Mary of the Snow has announced registration for the upcoming CYO basketball season, Saturday, Nov. 14, for members grades 5 through 9 at the Roger Donlon Auditorium in Saugerties between the hours of 8 and 9 a.m.

Bank Robber Testifies At Woman's Murder Trial

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI)—A convicted bank robber testified Thursday that while he was in jail millionaire gun collector William E. Thoresen III approached him and offered to post his $25,000 bond if he would murder Thoresen's wife Louise.

Thomas Keith said he thought Thoresen was jesting.

"That was the weird part about it," Keith testified at the trial of Mrs. Thoresen, accused of murdering her husband. "I joking said 'Why don't I blow her head off with a shotgun?'"

"But he replied 'No, that's too messy.'" Keith told the court.

Other witnesses, including a psychiatrist and three of Thoresen's former attorneys, said Thoresen was prone to violent moods and that he once tried to throw Louise out of a 20th story window.

Mrs. Thoresen is accused of firing five .38-caliber revolver shots into her husband's back as he lay in bed at their Fresno home June 10.

The defense has argued she shot her eccentric husband because she thought he was going to kill her. The prosecution claims Thoresen was asleep when his widow fired the fatal volley.

Keith, brought from McNeil Island federal prison in Washington, to testify, said Thoresen approached him in jail in 1967 with the offer to post Keith's $25,000 bail if he would kill Mrs. Thoresen.

Another McNeil Island convict, Earl Van Blaricom, said in 1967 Thoresen offered him $5,000 to kill his wife and when Blaricom refused Thoresen raised it to $10,000 and gave Blaricom $2,500 as a down payment.

Van Blaricom said he never intended to carry out the job and took the $2,500 to Mexico where "I spent it."

Prosecuted, Jane Fonda Says in Speech

AMSTERDAM, N.Y. (AP) — Jane Fonda, the 32-year-old actress-activist, warned a college audience here Thursday that students are being assigned unjust blame for the disintegration of American institutions.

Speaking at Fulton-Montgomery Community College as part of a nationwide lecture tour, Miss Fonda decried what she termed political prosecution in the United States, claiming that "some of the best people in America today are behind bars."

Vice President Spiro Agnew "has yet to be arrested for crossing state lines to incite a riot," she commented.

She cited her own arrest in Cleveland on Election Day as an example of political persecution. The actress was charged with pill smuggling and assault when she allegedly kicked a policeman and a U.S. customs agent after landing at Hopkins International Airport from a Canadian flight.

She told her listeners she had never been searched on international flights until she began speaking out against U.S. actions in Vietnam.

Contracts Climb

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Highway contracts awarded by the State Department of Transportation are running well ahead of the pace for 1969.

In the first half of the present state fiscal year, there were 134 contracts totaling $203 million for highways, parkways and projects for eliminating grade crossings. For the comparable period the year before, there were 110 contracts totaling $161 million.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I just finished washing the family "wheels" out in the driveway and got a real good tip from my next-door neighbor:

He was watching me use the chamois on the car and noticed how frustrated I got when the silly thing would just wrinkle and roll up.

He suggested that I take the sponge that I had used to wash the car, wrap the chamois around it and then use.

It sure worked a lot better and was so much easier to handle.

Dear Heloise:

It is very discouraging for any woman with less than perfect eyesight to apply eye makeup. It is a simple matter if you start with a magnifying mirror.

Then take a pair of discarded glasses, remove the arms, and tape the glasses through the nose piece to the mirror.

It really works great.

Betty, it sure 'nuf does work . . . could hardly believe my eyes when I tried it. I'm sold.

Dear Heloise:

If you are lucky enough to have one of those bushel baskets that come with the autumn apple harvest, hold onto it.

You can spray paint it a bright fall color such as yellow or orange and set it by the fireplace and use as a container for kindling wood.

It's such a nice way to add a little fall color to the living room or den on those chilly evenings when you sit by the glow of the fire.

You can also add a a few colorful oak and maple leaves around the rim of the basket and it makes it, oh, so pretty.

Dear Heloise:

Excellent disposable stirrers for small jars or cans of paint (especially for children's paints) may be made from the inexpensive, clear-type ballpoint pens.

When all the ink in these pens has been used, rather than throwing away the entire pen, I strip it of everything except its casing, remove the cap and the plug. Then with a pair of pliers, pull the ink refill out by its writing point.

Left will be the hollow casing which may be rinsed after each use as a stirrer and will last indefinitely.

Attention Mrs. Homemaker: Deer Season Opens Monday

Deer season will soon be underway. Here are some recipes using venison offered by Louise K. Breitung, Extension Home Economist.

VENISON MEAT BALLS

(Serves Four)

Three slices soft bread
One-fourth cup water
One-one-half pounds ground venison
Two teaspoons salt
One-fourth teaspoons pepper
Two-thirds cup finely chopped onion
One-fourth cup butter
One tablespoon flour
Three-fourths to one cup milk
Salt and pepper (for gravy)

Soak bread in water for five minutes. Break into small bits, pressing out as much water as possible. Combine bread, ground venison, salt, pepper and chopped onion. Blend lightly but thoroughly. Shape into small balls about one inch in diameter. Chill for 15 to 20 minutes. Brown on all sides in butter, turning frequently. Cover pan. Turn heat to low and cook for 15 minutes. Remove meat balls to separate pan and keep hot. Add flour, salt and pepper to pan drippings, stir well, add milk, stirring constantly, and simmer three or four minutes. Return meat balls to pan and simmer another five minutes. Serve hot.

For variety, meat balls may be served with sour cream dill gravy. (Makes one-one half cups.)

One tablespoon flour
One-half cup water
One cup commercial sour cream
One-fourth teaspoon garlic powder
One-half teaspoon sugar
One-half teaspoon salt
Two teaspoons dried dill seed

To drippings in skillet add one tablespoon flour and brown slowly, blending well. Add one-half cup water and cook slowly three to four minutes. Add sour cream and seasonings. Heat, stirring constantly until just bubbly. Serve meat balls topped with sour cream gravy garnish with paprika and parsley.

BROILED VENISON STRIPS

Two pounds lean venison strips or cubes
One-fourth cup vinegar
One-half cup cooking oil
One-fourth teaspoon coarse ground pepper
One-quarter cup pickle relish
One-half teaspoon garlic salt

Combine all the ingredients except venison and shake well to mix. Cover lean strips or cubes of venison with sauce. Allow to stand in refrigerator at least two days. Drain and broil meat. Be careful not to overcook or the meat will be tough.

SPAC Ball Discussed by Women's Advisory Council

The Women's Advisory Council of the Saratoga Performing Arts Center discussed plans for the seventh annual Performing Arts Ball at its first fall meeting held November 9. The date of next year's Ball, August 4, will coincide with that of The Philadelphia Orchestra's opening concert. Princess Irene, the younger sister of Greece's expatriate King Constantine, will be among the honored guests. A pianist of exceptional promise, the Princess will come to Saratoga to join her world-famous Greek teacher, Gina Bachauer, in a performance of Mozart's Two-Piano Concert with the Philadelphia Orchestra under the direction of Eugene Ormandy. Madame Bachauer will also play the Grieg Piano Concerto in Maestro Ormandy's opening concert.

The Women's Advisory Council was addressed by the Center's president, Newman E. Wait Jr., its executive director, Richard P. Leach and its general manager, E. Craig Hankenson. The three executives expressed their deep appreciation of the Council's remarkable contribution to the 1970 season, the most successful in the Center's five-year history. They reported that through the Council's good offices membership had risen from 479 to 1667 during the last 12 months. They also announced plans for the Center's annual gift-certificate campaign, whose focus will again be the Christmas period.

It was pointed out that the date of The Philadelphia Orchestra's first concert of next summer (and of the Performing Arts Ball) would be a Wednesday instead of a Thursday night. Next season, as an experiment, the Center will schedule no Sunday performances of either the New York City Ballet or The Philadelphia Orchestra. The ballet company will dance Tuesday through Saturday nights as usualy. There will be no change in the New York City Ballet's Friday matinees for students and teachers.

Similarly, The Philadelphia Orchestra will abandon Sunday matinees in favor of Wednesday evening performances. Thus in 1971 the Orchestra's four weekly programs will all be evening concerts — Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

'Romantic, Modest, Ladylike,' Portray Spring Fashions

SWIRLING CAPE — Designer Chester Weinberg breaks briefly away from the narrowed silhouette which dominates his spring collection with huge capes, swirling by the yards over print dresses. Weinberg's spring collection appears to reflect the softness and grace of the clothes of the 1920s and early 1930s. (UPI Telephoto)

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — With an eye on the cash register, the nation's influential designers are pinning their hopes for spring on the rebirth of the pretty dress.

The pretty dress was the common denominator in the majority of more than two-dozen fashion openings previewed during the past three weeks by United Press International fashion writers in the nation's garment district, New York's Seventh Avenue. Some of the clothes will be in the stores next month, and here's how you'll recognize the "pretty dress" among them:

A hemline at or just below the knee; a skirt that helps disguise hip problems via gathers, soft folds or gently pleating; bodice that's slightly fitted but rarely bosom hugging; sleeves to the wrist or just over the elbow.

Promotion of the dress with the sensible hemline to fashion's front ranks doesn't mean that fun, intrigue and romance will be missing on the spring fashion scene.

There will be plenty of pants suits, a full serving of dresses with romantic, come hither or sexy looks, and even a touch or two of the comical.

Strictly from the comics were three long crepe dresses in the Geoffrey Beene collection, with comic strip characters enbroidered on with pounds of sequins.

Right behind the pretty dress in the spring fashion picture is the ethnic look, inspired by gypsies, peasants, and South American cowboys, the American Indian and grannies of the 1890s. The "ethnics" were designed for patio parties, at-home festivities indoors or even a black tie dinner dance.

For daytime the costume and the Chanel suit repeated in many collections. The costume was a little dress with matching jacket-bolero, cabin boy or slightly fitted to the hip.

Coats for spring, most often midi length, came in paintbox colors but navy, always a spring winner, was most often repeated. A blazer silhouette was preferred in the cuddlecoat collection designed by Victor Joris. Cape and trenchcoat silhouettes also were seen. Frequently coats came with matching trousers.

Some fashion houses didn't show a hemline higher than the midi. Pierre Cardin America, for one, relied on high slits fore, aft and at the sides to show flashes of gam. These were called petal skirts, sometimes shown by models in bare feet.

The romantic look for evening included crepes and matte jerseys that fitted like a second skin and bared the back, columns of chiffon that provocatively draped the body, and lace versions of the pretty dress-fitted bodice, portrait necklines, long sometimes deckings of ruffles and almost always clinched at the waist with a wide sash, bowed at side or front with streamers flowing down.

MODEL displays dress by one of the nation's influential designers, who is pinning his hopes for spring on the rebirth of the pretty dress. It was shown during one of the fashion openings previewed luring the past three weeks by UPI fashion writers in the nation's garment district, New York's Seventh Avenue. (UPI Telephoto)

REBIRTH OF THE PRETTY DRESS—Spring, 1971 will see the return of the "pretty" dress, according to several of the nation's influential designers. The jumper-styled outfit pictured here was shown recently during the garment district's fashion opening at New York's Seventh Avenue. The feminine styles are featuring knee-length for the spring.(UPI Telephoto)

THIS COVERED LADY-LOOK COSTUME in the Christian Dior-New York Collection for spring, shown in New York recently, reminded some viewers of the Sunday school picnic costume made popular in the Gay Nineties. Covered arms, demure neckline, modest skirt length, and a hat suitable for holding strawberries, if the wearer dared to steal from the picnic to the berry patch with a friend of her choice. No minis were shown. (UPI Telephoto)

HAT FASHIONS presented in New York recently included (l-r) a poor boy cap of giant multi-color plaid by Betmar; a model wears a giant, side tilt floppy brim of softest purple suede by Ambrose; an olden days British sailor shape done in brilliant orange felt with multi-colored headband by Chesterfield; and a head-hugging knitted cap with matching stole of fire engine red by Betmar. Says The Green Thumb

Get Off to an Early Start on Geraniums

BY GEORGE ABRAHAM

If your geraniums are tall and gawky, I'd take cuttings from them now. If rooted now, they'll make dandy plants by the time Memorial Day rolls around. If allowed to grow without any pruning, the mother plants will be tree-size and fill your entire kitchen. These cuttings can be three or four inches long, and the cut can be made anywhere on the branch. Take all leaves off lower half (they'll only rot) and insert the cuttings into your favorite rooting material.

Clean sharp sand, vermiculite or perlite, or just plain tap water are used for rooting. If you use rooting materials make sure holes are in the bottom of the pot or box to prevent rotting. Place cuttings into the material to a depth of one inch to hold cutting upright. Cuttings are well watered and kept moist, but NOT SOGGY. An ordinary clay pot—six to eight inches across makes a good starting "greenhouse" for your favorite plants. Fill the pot with perlite, sand or vermiculite, insert cuttings, water them well, then place a plastic bag over pot and all, to reduce water loss, and to hasten rooting. Keep cuttings out of direct sunlight, and they'll root in three or four weeks.

After rooting, pot the cuttings up in three or four inch clay pots, using a mixture of one-third peat, sand and loam. Grow geraniums in a bright, cool window and keep the soil moist. If the cuttings start to get a bit tall, pinch the tip back and get a bushier plant. Florists pinch theirs two or three times to induce bushiness. Feed them once a month with a liquid plant food such as 23-19-17, and make sure they get plenty of light.

GLADS AGAIN: A reader asks us why we do not refer to glads as Gladioli, or gladiola. Here's the reason: Because home gardeners (and professionals) have referred to the plural as gladioli, gladiola, gladioluses, the North American Gladiolus Council decided to end this confusion and decreed that the plural of glads and the singular be referred to as gladiolus. So, one glad is gladiolus, and more than one is also gladiolus. This may violate the laws of latin but it certainly does a lot to prevent a lot of confusion.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "Our arborvitae evergreens have a lot of brown leaves toward the center. Is this a disease?"

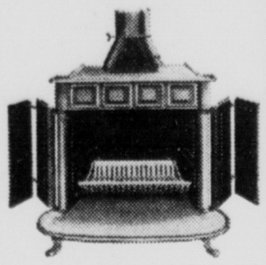

Answer: No. These evergreens shed foliage from the inside, and it's natural for them to turn brown now. When they're brown on inside and outside, then you'll know there is something wrong with the plants. All evergreens do this, including the Yews.

Q.—There are several coats of wallpaper on our kitchen walls, which are made of plaster. I remember having a lot of trouble years ago getting off even one coat. How do I go about getting off three?

A.—While a chemical wallpaper remover, available at hardware stores, will help with the project, you may have to rent a steamer. If so, have the dealer show you how to operate it. Why don't you first try the chemical remover?

Welcome Invader

An invader from the vegetable world is becoming a popular ornamental plant for flower lovers.

You won't find it on the vegetable stands in the super-market but "Flowering Cabbage" is becoming quite a conversation piece in the home or back yard. Formally known as brassica oleracea acephala, Flowering Cabbage is a thick-leaved, glaucous perennial of European ancestry.

When you think of cabbage, you get a definite vision of a rounded, solid green bit of produce. But Flowering Cabbage is quite different. It has loose, spreading leaves forming an open rosette with striking shades of ivory-white to rosy-purple in the center. In short, it is a large, showy flower.

This pretty cabbage is equally suited for use as in a pot plant or flower bed. Paul Rutter, chief horticulturist at Florida Cypress Gardens, says it is of easy culture.

Most of all it needs full sun, a moderately fertile soil and bi-weekly application of a water soluble fertilizer with a high nitrogen-potash, low phosphorus ratio to produce the best results.

"Propogation is most easily accomplished by planting seeds in a sterile media, later transplanting them when they have developed two or three leaves," Rutter explained. "At present, there are no fungi that hamper growth and only one insect pest of any consequence, the cabbage looper, a greenish caterpillar that eats the leaves."

To control the looper, hand-pick them or apply 5 per cent rotonone dust.

A hybrid between Flowering Cabbage and ordinary kale is Flowering Kale (brassica oleracea acephala fimbriata), of Japanese origin. The cultural requirements are the same. The major difference is that the kale's leaf edge is much more lacy.

'Bless This World'— A Musical Happening

"Bless this World," a musical happening sub-titled "A Seeing Listen-In, Participation Too" had its Mid-Hudson premiere in the Vassar College Chapel, Poughkeepsie, last Sunday, Nov. 8, at 7 p.m.

The work, a contemporary worship celebration, was commissioned at the 1970 national convention of the American Guild of Organists and was jointly sponsored by Vassar College and the Dutchess County Council of Churches.

The work is scored for mixed chorus, solo baritone, reader, pre-recorded tape, three slide projects, two trumpets, two tenor trombones, one bass trombone, organ and a jazz trio.

Area Composer

The composer, Ed Summerlin, is a resident of nearby Clinton Hollow, and is the composer of the first jazz liturgy to be performed in this country. He was recently in Brussels where he performed at the International Congress on the Communication of Culture Through Architecture, Arts and Mass Media. He has composed numerous church works and has done compositions for CBS-TV, NBC-TV, ABC, the BBC and Dutch radio. He has also conducted or lectured at a number of American universities, including Harvard, Yale, Brown and Wisconsin. He also composed the score for "Ciao," the only full-length American film chosen for the 1967 Venice Film Festival. He is currently editing a book, "Today Songs for Today's People," for the Liturgical Conference in Washington, D.C.

The text of "Bless this World" was written by Roger Ortmayer, executive director of the Department of Church and Culture of the Division of Christian Life and Mission of the National Council of Churches, New York City.

A former magazine editor, he has written a number of television and motion picture scripts and is a frequent guest on network television programs. He is the author of one book, "Worship and the Arts," and the editor of another, "Witness to the Campus."

Pritchard Conducting

The 54-minute work was conducted by Lee H. Pritchard, assistant professor of music at the State University College of New York at New Paltz. Pritchard is also musical director and conductor of the 40-member Mid-Hudson Camerata Chorale, which served as the mixed chorus in Sunday's concert. The Chorale performed before more than 11,000 people this past summer in the Clearwater and the F and M Schaefer Brewing Company Concert series. Among the other participants were: narrator, Chaplain George Williamson, Jr. of Vassar College; baritone soloist, Curtice C. White, Jr. of Hyde Park, a veteran of the Hudson Valley Music Theater; organist, Edward F. Husted of Fishkill, instrumental music teacher in the Arlington school system; and saxophonist, composer Summerlin.

During the performance, the Vassar chapel was decorated with liturgical banners; some have been borrowed from area churches, and others designed by Vassar students. The event, which was open to the public at no charge, was followed by a reception in the foyer of the chapel.

The college's regular 11 o'clock service Sunday morning featured a liturgy designed and executed by composer Summerlin and librettist Ormayer. Their theme was bread.

Disposes of Silver

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The federal government has officially gone out of the silver selling business, by disposing of the last 1.57 million ounces it has been offering to the public.

The Treasury has been selling most of its silver supply on the open market for the last three years, disposing of about one-half billion dollars worth during the period. The government kept nearly 200 million ounces for its own use, some of it for minting Kennedy half dollars purposes.

Janos Just Grins and Bears It And the Cookies Keep Coming In

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD—The waitress wanted to know if the cheerful little man with the thick accent was really the bear on the Andy Williams Show. When she satisfied herself that he was, she ran out to the kitchen and returned with a plate of cookies.

Anybody who watches Andy's NBC show knows the significance of her gesture. The bear on the show keeps asking Andy for cookies and he never gives him any. So people keep sending cookies to the bear, c-o Andy Williams Show, NBC, Burbank, Calif., 91503.

The cookies are turned over to Janos Prohaska, alias The Bear. Prohaska is a delightful man, an acrobat-turned-stuntman, who is for the first time in a long career becoming famous. And he loves it. He also likes cookies, which makes it nice.

Prohaska is a Hungarian, who started out as a circus acrobat. In European circuses, animal acts are very big, and he watched all the animals perform, and began imitating them. He decided to add something to his act—he worked with two other men, in an act called the Trio Fayes—and made himself a chimpanzee suit.

"It wasn't a very good chimpanzee suit," Prohaska says, "but the people liked it. We kept it in the act."

The Trio Fayes worked together for 15 years and eventually went to Australia, which was home for several years. Then they tried the U.S., playing Las Vegas. Janos Prohaska liked it better. But his partners didn't, and went back to Australia.

Left to his own devices, he concentrated more and more on his animal impersonations. He began creating better and better costumes, and became a specialist in animals in Hollywood.

Over the years, he did most of the monster animals on Lost In Space, Star Trek and Voyage To the Bottom Of the Sea. And he did straight animals, too—he whipped up a very good bear suit and played a ferocious bear on Daniel Boone and Here Come the Brides.

When the Andy Williams Show wanted a bear bit, he took that same ferocious bear suit and turned it into a funny bear.

"It is my ability," he says, and he says it modestly, "to be able to do this. I can make my bear funny and cute and lovable for The Andy Williams Show, and I can make him vicious for Daniel Boone."

He designs and makes all his own costumes. He studies the muscles of the animals and starts with a Latex base, then adds the fur. It is difficult for him to place a value on his bear suit, but he thinks it cost him about $2,000 to make.

He has so many costumes, which he stores on mannequins that he keeps them in most of the six garages of the apartment building he owns. This means that he doesn't rent the garages, and has often lost tenants because of that, but he needs the storage space more than he needs tenants.

It's tough work, being a bear. Janos Prohaska says that after an active sequence on the show, he will take off his bear gloves and literally pour out perspiration.

And, in case you're impressed by the huge, hulking size of the bear, as it knocks on Andy's door, here's one fact to stick in your memory—Janos Prohaska is only 5-5. He just has a way of thinking a big bear.

'Vocal Seminars' In Return Series

Two "Seminars for the Vocal Arts" to be presented at West Park's Ascension Parish Hall on Nov. 15 and 22 at 3 p.m. have been announced by performer-teacher Karen Ranung.

TEMPO readers should recall her first series of seminars held earlier this fall. They proved so successful and so popular that Miss Ranung has planned this second series, again using a para-recital setting to present preparing vocal students for performance appearances.

For both Sunday seminars, she will present advanced pupils from her vocal studio. Among those who will be performing are Hilda Carr, soprano; Patricia Cummins, contralto; Michael Konder, tenor; Gary McCartney, baritone; and Joan Merrill, soprano.

An added feature of the first seminar on Nov. 15 will be a display of paintings by Catherine Santero. For the second session on Nov. 22, there will be a special guest performance by Diane Spinski, voice and drama student, who will present works from the theater. The program that afternoon will also feature lyric soprano Lydia Nikolskia Small in a group of Russian songs.

Area residents will also be interested in the First Seminar-Concert set for Dec. 13. To be presented at Ascension Parish Hall at 3:30 p.m., it will feature such highly professional artists as harpist-troubadour Gerald Goodman and soprano Karen Ranung.

'Lark' Followed By the Wild Ones

Joyous fun is "Noah's Lark," a musical variety show with a cast of 100 student singers, dancers, musicians and comics. "Lark" is being performed this weekend at Orange County Community College, Middletown, and tickets are on sale in Orange Hall on campus.

Admission is $1 for students and $2 for adults. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday nights in the OCCC theater. Co-sponsors of the show, based on Noah's escape from the flood, are the college's Leona Miner Music Club and the Apprentice Players.

Next week, the granddaddy of all chopper flicks plays a one-night stand on the Middletown campus. "The Wild Ones," Stanley Kramer's film story of a small town terrorized by a gang of motorcycle hoodlums, will be the Nov. 17 presentation of the OCCC scholarship film series.

The picture, starring Marlon Brando and Lee Marvin, will be shown at 4 and 8 p.m. in the Orange Hall theater. Admission is 50 cents for students and $1 for adults with proceeds going to college scholarships.

Private Eye Pilot

Bert Leonard, who produced the popular "Naked City" and "Route 66" series, has another video prospect. For Screen Gems, he is producing a two-hour film for NBC's "World Premiere" skein entitled "The Catcher." It is a pilot for a projected one-hour weekly series for the 1971-72 season. Has to do with a former city detective who turns private eye to exploit his special talent for running down fugitives, missing persons, etc.

You break your back to give 'em a good home. clothes, cars, and still, it's not enough. They've got to try drugs. And sex. And crazy politics. And when they spit in your face, they expect you to smile.
Not your kids, of course. But kids like 'THE PEOPLE NEXT DOOR.'
this movie is for people under 30
Like it's about parents!
They're cop-outs. It's always "do as I say and not as I do." They're hung on their Scotch and sleeping pills and tranquilizers - then get uptight if you turn on. Or preach you the honesty bit - then boast how they cheat on their taxes. Hypocrites
Not your parents, of course. But parents like 'THE PEOPLE NEXT DOOR.'

Paltz Concert-Choir Director Has Notable Achievements

By JON POWERS

NEW PALTZ

"Most Jazz, blues and popular rock recordings don't grab me," David Randolph told reporters recently, "and I'm even bored by some classical texts." But the newly-appointed director of the concert choir at the State University College at New Paltz isn't destined to bore many people and his masterful blending of voices and instrumentation is bound to captivate even the most turned on advocate of the popular musical scene.

As conductor of the famed Masterwork Chorus and Orchestra, Randolph is one of the nation's leading choral directors. Among his many notable achievements are performances of Handel's Messiah and Mozart's Requiem at Carnegie Hall and Bach's St. Hohn Passion at Philharmonic Hall. All three, and scores of other performances, were played before packed houses and earned him the praise and admiration of reviewers from every major metropolitan newspaper.

A New York Times reviewer had this to say about Randolph's performance of Bach's Mass in B Minor: "The performance added a high point to a season that has been particularly blessed with fine choral singing. It was not just the chorus that excelled, the Masterwork Orchestra played beautifully. But more important than all these was the man who blended them together, David Randolph, the conductor."

With the respect and admiration of most musical aficiandos, Randolph has achieved a degree of acclaim that has put him at the top of his profession. He hopes to add to this fame by continuing and extending the musical accomplishments of the concert choir at New Paltz.

"When I came to visit the college," Randolph explained, I was very much impressed by the countryside and the campus. Then I listened to tape recordings of previous concerts of the college music groups; I reviewed their previous programs and appreciated that there work was already at a fine level artistically. The opportunity to work here became more and more appealing."

Despite his fondness for New Paltz and the college community, Randolph will be hard pressed to spend more than a few hours a week in the area. He will be leading the local choir for several hours each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon, but will spend the other five days a week commuting throughout the metropolitan New York and New Jersey area conducting, teaching and lecturing.

In addition to his duties with the Masterwork Chorus and Orchestra and assignments at the college at New Paltz, Randolph conducts the St. Cecilia Chorus in Manhattan and an amateur singing group in Morristown, N.J., on Wednesdays. That midweek day is also devoted to lectures in Music Appreciation at New York University. Fridays are reserved for lectures at the Philharmonic Hall and Sundays are devoted to his weekly broadcast of classical music over WNYC. To date, Randolph has hosted some 1,180 broadcasts on the city owned station over a span of 22 years.

But despite an average week that sees one appearance heaped upon another, and little time left for relaxation or family pursuits, Randolph wouldn't consider changing his style of existence, mostly because he loves music and loves working with people.

His affection for the musician plays a large part in Randolph's success as a conductor. "I derive no pleasure from the typical 'tempermental' approach which tends to designate and embarrass the musicians," said Randolph. "I like to achieve my goals through understanding, rather than by the exercise of 'mere authority.' "Explanation, understanding, patience and humor" are the keys to his success, Randolph told The Freeman.

Randolph also has a special rapport with his audience, contributing greatly to his popularity as a conductor. At times, he has taken advantage of a break in the program to give verbal notes and explanations to members of the audience from his platform on the stage. "By this means," he said, "I will try not only to establish a rapport with the audience but to give them insight into the music."

Randolph wants "sensuous excitement" and "substance" in the music he hears and conducts, and he is especially excited about his recent opportunity to work with the students at New Paltz. While he has worked with people of all ages, Randolph's experience at New Paltz will be his first opportunity to work with a group that is composed almost entirely of young people. "I am challenged and intrigued by the prospect of working with them this year," he noted.

The Manhattan native also expects eventual success and acclaim for his youthful singers. "An amateur chorus can turn out professional music," said Randolph and he is working towards that end in preparation for concerts slated January 10 and April 23 at New Paltz.

Kerhonkson Lions Club Gives Blood Bank Support

KERHONKSON

Led by their president, Abraham Black, one third of the membership of the Kerhonkson Lions Club joined the Ulster County Blood Bank at a recent meeting addressed by Wilfred Springer, executive director of the Blood Bank.

Springer said the members of the Lions Club "joined the Blood Bank on the spot," and the other members expressed much interest in the new blood replacement plan.

From that group of Lions who became members of the bank, Springer announced that Samuel Devine, age 70, is now listed as the oldest known member of the Blood Bank.

"Mr. Devine may be the oldest member of the Bank," said the executive director, "but he is still given the same benefits as anyone else who joins regardless of age. He is not permitted to give blood himself, for reason of his age, but may either have a younger member of his family or a friend give for him."

Springer has been touring the county speaking to professional and civic groups on the need of the Blood Bank in Ulster County. The Bank, started in September, offers protection to members and their dependents in the event they need whole human blood for an emergency or other medical problem in Ulster County. Protection is also offered for members while they are out of the county, he said, inviting interested persons to contact the Blood bank for further information.

He also suggested that groups wishing to hear a report on the Bank may contact him at the Bank's office.

The Bank is a member agency of the Ulster County Community Chest and the mailing address is Central Post Office, Box 'T', Kingston, 12401.

Paltz College Blacks Make Food Demands

NEW PALTZ — A group of black students at the State University at New Paltz, who charge that the college's food service has been allowing "differential treatment on the basis of race" have presented a series of demands to the colleges administration.

The demands which were first presented to the director of a college dining hall on Oct. 26, have subsequently been referred to the Dean of Students Office for consideration.

According to a statement issued by Dean of Students, Douglas Baker, "the demands centered around the feeling expressed by the blacks that they were being differentially treated and harrassed with the Food Services, particularly in the area of identification of Food Service violations."

However, the exact wording of the demands still remains in question. The student newspaper, the Oracle, printed one version, which they subsequently retracted and the dean's statement went no further than summarizing the demands.

The controversy was dramatically made public in the Oct. 29 issue of the Oracle which included an article stating in part that the blacks wanted to be "exempted from returning their trays" in the dining hall, while whites would not be, and that black students "must not be fined for offenses such as stealing food."

Both the Oracle, which in a subsequent issue called the article "an atrocious piece of 'journalistic' garbage . . . that slipped through the editing process" and the black students involved vigorously denied the veracity of this account.

In his statement, Dean Baker did not specify what the demands were but did state that they included concern over employment practices, the food services fine system, use of left-over food, the judicial system, and general harassment.

The statement continued that "a tentative program to deal with the areas of concern was agreed upon. This program will include the hiring and recruiting of blacks for various food service jobs, the addition to the menu of "international dishes" and a meeting between the dean of students and food service employees "to identify techniques for dealing with areas of friction."

The Dean said that he will continue to discuss the matter with "any interested students . . . to attempt to remedy any fraction-producing situation and policies."

DOWN AND OUT! New York Knicks' coach Ned Holzman (back-left) and trainer Dan Whelan help Cazzie Russell to his feet last night after Russell fell heavily on his right wrist. Russell suffered a contusion of the right hand which may have impaired blood circulation during the incident which happened as the Baltimore Bullets beat the Knicks 110-108. (UPI PHOTO)

Caz's Injury Convinces Red

By GARY KALE
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) —Red Holzman isn't usually superstitious, but the New York Knicks coach had a feeling the Friday 13th jinx would lower the boom on his club.

Cazzie Russell, one of the Knick supersubs who powered New York to the National Basketball Association championship last season, was the hex victim as he suffered a broken left wrist in Thursday night's 110-108 loss to the Baltimore Bullets.

"As a rule, I don't go for that jinx stuff," Holzman said after he learned Russell would wear a cast for six weeks, 'but there aren't too many Friday the 13ths during the year and you can't help wondering if what they say about the day is true."

Russell was hurt about two hours before the witching hour when he fell while driving for the basket on a layup that tied the game at 98-all. It appeared the Knick forward was trying to draw Wes Unseld into a foul for a three-point play, but the Baltimore center faded back and Russell, finding no resistance, fell heavily to the floor.

Ironically, the incident occurred at the same spot, to the left of the basket, where Willis Reed fell during the fifth game of the 1970 final playoffs with Los Angeles that almost cost New York the title.

"We won't hunt for a replacement at this time," Holzman said, "since we're down to the 12-man limit with Russell out. It'll mean the other guys will get more playing time. I'll probably play Phil Jackson at forward a lot more now."

The Knicks were a somber group in the dressing room after their twin loss—Russell's injury and the two-point defeat set up by Gus Johnson's two foul shots with 14 seconds remaining. Russell was hospitalized overnight for further observation. He had also been complaining that the fingers on his right hand were numb.

"I thought these thisgs only happen to me," said Reed with a shake of his head. "I'm the guy that's accident-prone."

Russell was the Knick starter two years ago, then suffered a broken ankle and Bill Bradley became more than an able replacement.

The former Michigan All-America had been a recent starter, but Holtzman decided to make Bradley the first-string forward "because Cazzie gives us a bigger lift coming off the bench."

The loss marked the second time in the last two games that New York was beaten in the final 17 seconls. Dick Snyder's basket for Seattle last Tuesday at that precise moment defeated the Knicks.

New York had one last chance to tie the game, but Walt Frazier's in-bounds pass went through Reed's hands.

The play did not come as a surprise to Baltimore coach Gene Shue. He had Dorie Murrey, the tallest man on the Bullets team at 6-8, guarding Reed and it was an effective measure.

"I told Murrey to shove hard, at Reed," said Shue. "It's sort of like the bump-and-run they pull in pro football. Murrey delayed Reed just long enough to prevent him from reaching the ball.

"I don't believe in giving the opposition a free pass. They have to fight for every point. I'm familiar with the play New York tried. I've watched other teams trying the very same play, on TV, and we successfully pulled it against Detroit last season."

Reed, the NBA's MVP, and Frazier accounted for almost two-thirds of the Knick point total. Reed scored 34 points and collected 30 rebounds. Frazier, who has been passing off less and scoring more, tallied 30 points.

Eddie Miles led Baltimore with 25 and Kevin Loughery hal 23. The two backcourtmen combined for 21 of the Bullets' 28 points in the fourth quarter.

In the night's only other NBA game, Cincinnati overwhelmed San Francisco 121-107. In the American Basketball Association, Utah whipped the Floridians 125-115 and Indiana nipped Pittsburgh 135 132.

The Cavaliers, Cleveland's first NBA team since the Rebels played their only season there in 1946-47, gladly settled for a record-book tie with another long-defunct team.

They equalled the mark of 15 season-starting setbacks set by the Denver Nuggets back in 1949-50 when they played their lone season in what was then known as the Basketball Association of America.

Walt Wesley's 21 points topped the balanced Cleveland attack but it was Bob Lewis who gave the Cavaliers their first lead at 99-98 with 2:30 remaining in the game, then locked up the victory with a pair of long jumpers in the final minutes. Portland's Jim Barnett led all scorers with 27.

Baltimore's Gus Johnson canned a pair of last-ditch foul shots with 14 seconds to play but the Bullets didnt' wrap up the see-saw game until New York fouled up a last-gasp in-bounds pass.

Willis Reed of the Knicks earned scoring honors with 34 points but Baltimore countered with a balanced attack led by Eddie Miles with 25 and Kevin Loughery with 23.

Cincinnati pulled ahead to stay early in the first qcarter and never let San Francisco get closer than six points the rest of the was. Tom VanArsdale paced the Royals iwth 29 points. Jerry Lucas collected 24 for the Warriors.

Blues Victory A Club Record

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Baun wasn't on the ice--but Tim Ecclestone, Gary Sabourin and Ernie Wakelz were, and that was al. the St. Louis Blues needed to set a record.

The Blues, edging Detroit 2-1 in Thursday night's only National Hockey League game, extended their home-ice victory string to six, a club record. California is at Buffalo in tonight's only NHL contest.

Shortly before his Blues took the ice against the Red Wings, St. Louis General Manager Scotty Bowman announced the suspension of defenseman Baun, a 14-year veteran recently acquired from Buffalo. The Sabres had picked him up from Detroit on waivers.

"You can say that we just have not been able to solve his personal problems and we have suspended him through the league office," Bowman said of Baun.

Barely six minutes into the game, which drew 18,043 fans, Sabourin put the Blues on the scoreboard, beating Red Wings netminder Roy Edwards. Ecclestone scored what proved to be the clincher at 14:21 of the second period.

Waekly, who turned aside all but one of Detroit's 26 shots, lost his shutout midway in the final session as Alex Delvecchio notched an unassisted goal, his seventh tally of the season.

But the Blues' defense clamped down after that. St. Louis, two points behind front-running Chicago in the West Division, has allowed but two goals in the past 245 minutes of play—more than four games. Detroit remains fifth in the East, four points behind Vancouver.

Freeman Dunks 53

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Brisker, Zelmo Beaty and Donnie Freeman were firing them in on the American Basketball Association courts—but that was nothing compared to the firing on the benches.

Freeman canned 53 points in a losing effort for Pittsburgh as the Indiana Pacers tripped the Condors 135-132 while Beaty and Freeman scored 39 apiece to lead the runaway Utah Stars to a 125-115 triumph over the Floridians in Thursday night's ABA action.

The Indiana and Utah victories were the only ABA games. But two other clubs—the Kentucky Colonels and Denver Rockets—were far from idle.

The Colonels fired Coach Gene Rhodes and temporarily handed the job to business manager Alex Groza, a former star at the University of Kentucky, as they conducted negotiations with former Boston Celtics star Frank Ramsey.

Just hours later the Rockets ejected Joe Belmont as head coach and boosted assistant coach Stan Albeck into the top spot.

Denver's move was prompted by a losing club—the Rockets are 3-10 and fighting to stay out of the West Division cellar. Kentucky is 10-5 and just a game out of first in the East. Mike Storen president of the Colonels called the decision a "business judgement."

Roger Brown paced the Pacers with 38 points including a three-point goal that put them ahead of the Condors for good at 94-91 late in the third period. Bob Netolicky added 31 points for the winners.

The Floridians, led by Larry Jones' 32 points, breezed to a 15-point lead in the first period but couldn't htld it.

Utah, retaining its 3½-game margin over Indiana in the West, cut the gap to five points at the intermission, then raced to its 11th victory in 12 games.

Army Cagers 2nd to UCLA?

WEST POINT — Only two teams in the country have reached the semi-finals of a post-season basketball tournament five times in the last seven years. UCLA is, of course, one, but you might be surprised to learn that the other is the Cadet squad from West Point.

Much of the credit for the Army success goes to 39 year old coach Bob Knight who, in five years at the Point, has compiled 91 wins, 37 losses, four trips to the NIT, and the nation's defensive leadership three times.

Few United States mentors can boast of such impressive figures, but the Ohio State graduate has combined know-how with the talents display by Mike Silliman, Bill Helkie, and Bill Schutsky, among others, to continually produce top flight hoop squads.

The coming season offers several challenges to Knight, but despite the loss of high scoring Jim Oxley and tough rebounder Mike Gyovai to graduation, he doesn't appear to be worried.

Moving in to take the place of the departed stars are senior forwards Doug Clevenger and Max Miller. Performing in Army's slow "look for the good shot" offense, Clevenger put in 13.8 points per game last year while Miller added just under nine markers.

Ed Mueller, a forward, and Dave Ralph, a guard, both junior lettermen, are expected to add to West Point's '70-'71 hoop output. Mueller was strictly a late game performer for Knight while Ralph was an occasional starter. The latter was particularly strong in Army's NIT encounter with Manhattan as he tallied some big baskets.

Also back from last year's team are guard Wally Wojdakowski, forward Bob Freeman, and center Skip Loucks. Coach Knight has been pleased with the improvement shown by the trio in practices to date.

Added strength for the varsity comes from several Plebe stars of a year ago. Top scorer Bob Sherwin and runner-up John O'Maley are the "quickest guards we have had here in quite some time," Knight says, "perhaps the quickest ever."

Kent Johnson and Chris Petersen are other Plebe grads Knight will be counting on to provide him with depth.

The task for the Army coach is to put these elements together and come up with the right combination in time for the opener at home against Lehigh on Dec. 1. Judging from his record, Knight will succeed and so will West Point.

Detroit Lions Faced With Must Win Game

By BOB DI PIETRO
UPI Sports Writer

A funny thing happened to the Detroit Lions on their way to Sunday's game with the Minnesota Vikings.

They ran into Tom Dempsey's 63-yard field goal.

Dempsey's National Football League-record boot in the final two seconds of last week's contest gave the New Orleans Saints a 19-17 victory over the Lions. The loss dropped Detroit (5-3) two games behind the Vikings (7-1) in their battle for top spot in the National Football Conference's Central Division.

In other NCF contests Sunday, Washington (4-4) is at New York against the Giants (5-3) in a key Eastern Division contest. Chicago (3-5) meets Green Bay (4-4) and Atlanta (3-4-1) is at Philadelphia (1-7). St. Louis (6-2), leader of the NFC East, takes on Dallas (5-3), — which shares second spot in the division with the Giants—in the nationally televised game Monday night.

In the American Football Conference, Oakland (4-2-2) meets Denver (4-4) in a vital contest in the hot Western Division. San Diego (3-3-2) is at Boston (1-7). Kansas City (4-3-1) at Pittsburgh (4-4), Cleveland (4-4) at Cincinnati (2-6) and Buffalo (3-5) is at Baltimore (7-1).

In inter-conference action, the New York Jets (1-7) face the Rams (5-2-1) at Los Angeles. San Francisco (6-1-1) plays Houston (2-5-1) and New Orelans (2-5-1) is at Miami (4-4).

Detroit was obviously anticipating a situation where it would enter the contest with Minnesota trailing by only a game and be in a position to gain a tie for the division lead. The Lions played New Orelans almost absent-mindedly. The Saints forced three interceptions and three fumbles. Then came Dempsey.

Now the Lions are faced with a must-win situation, but theirs is a tough task.

The Vikings defense has yielded a league low of 66 points. That's 38 points less than the next-stingiest team, the Los Angeles Rams.

Detroit, with runners Mel Farr, Altie Taylor and Bill Triplett, receivers Earl McCullouch, Cahrlie Sanders and Larry Walton and field goal kicking specialist Errol Mann, are a high-scoring outfit.

The Lions have produced 207 points in eight games. That averages out to nearly 26 points a game, a figure second in the league only to St. Louis. The Vikings, though, are no slouches when it comes to scoring. Their 203 points places them third.

Fred Cox, the NFC's leading scorer with 83 points, kicked four field goals in Minnesota's 19-10 win last week over the Redskins. Cox now has kicked 21 of 28 three-pointers this year and has kicked at least one in 27 straight games, a record. The 106 straight games in which Cox has scored is four short of the record held by Sam Baker.

There is a strong possibility that Greg Landry, the third year pro out of the University of Massachusetts, will replace Detroit's starting quarterback Bill Munson.

"I'll make the decision before Sunday," said coach Joe Schmdit. "I want to talk with both men first ... then make up my mind. Bill has been intercepted six times in the last two games. We added three fumbles last weekend and the Saints scored after all three of 'em.

"These are team mistakes," Schmidt continued. "But if I think a quarterback change will give us a pickup and help us to eliminate those errors, then I'll change."

Minnesota seeks its sixth straight win against Detroit in what will be the 20th game of their series. Detroit still holds a one game edge with nine wins. Two games have ended in a tie.

Of the two teams, Detroit has the tougher remaining schedule. "It's all uphill," concedes Schmidt. "But we know if we beat them Sunday, we're back in the race again. Our guys know that anything can happen in this crazy game. If something goes against you, it figures that the same thing can work for you.

"We're still alive. I guess I could say that we still are alive and kicking ... but after last Sunday, I hate to use that other word ..."

Longhorns Fear Texas Christian

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Everyone's ganging up on Texas lately. Baylor did last weekend, holding the mighty Longhorns to a hard-earned 21-14 victory. Then the pollsters dropped Texas from first to second and Coach Darrell Royal expects more of the same from Texas Christian on Saturday in Fort Worth.

"You just don't go runnng roughshod over people when they put up a stubborn resistance," Royal said of the Baylor game, in which Texas was a lopsided favorite. "They played defense better than we blocked."

Royal predicted Texas Christian would bunch up on the line of scrimmage, as Baylor did, to stop Texas' Wishbone-T running attack. But, he added, "We'll still basically try to move the ball by running."

Revenge is on TCU's side, though. Last year, Texas scored the most points in Southwest Conference history with a 69-7 rout. But Texas has a 27-game winning streak.

"I said before the season that there would be several games that would be close," Royal reminded, "and we've had two of them. You can take a gun and put one bullet in it, spin the chamber and the odds are good it won't go off. But you sure get nervous knowing it's up there somewhere."

Notre Dame, the team that replaced Texas at the top of The Associated Press poll, entertains Georgia Tech, while No. 3 Ohio State, No. 4 Nebraska and No. 5 Michigan all have big games on tap.

Ohio State visits Purdue and Michigan hosts Iowa with the Big Ten showdown game one week off. Nebraska is at home against Kansas State with the Big Eight lead and a probable Orange Bowl bid for the Cornhuskers at stake.

Georgia Tech hopes to give Notre Dame a battle, but Coach Bud Carson says the Fighting Irish are "the best team in the country.

"I've seen films on Ohio State and Texas, but I feel that we'll be playing the best there is this weekend. They're in a class by themselves. They present all the problems a football team can present. Joe Theismann is one of the great quarterbacks in the country—and that's an understatement."

Rounding out the Top Ten, sixth-ranked Stanford visits No. 13 Air Force, Southern Methodist is at seventh-rated Arkansas, No. 8 Auburn entertains Georgia and Mississippi State goes against ninth-ranked Louisiana State under the lights in Baton Rouge.

Tennessee, rated 10th, and No. 18 Southern California are idle.

Elsewhere, it's Utah at No. 11 Arizona State, Chattanooga at No. 12 Mississippi without Archie Manning, Santa Barbara at No. 14 San Diego State, No. 15 Dartmouth at Cornell, No. 16 Toledo at Dayton, No. 17 UCLA at Washington and No. 19 Oregon at Army.

Majors Plan Oscar Dinner

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Baseball is going to have its own Academy Awards. Complete with Bob Hope.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Thursday announced at a news conference that the sport will honor its stars and personalities at an awards dinner Dec. 3.

The dinner, at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills, Calif., is scheduled in conjunction with the major league baseball meetings here Nov. 29 through Dec. 4.

Hope will be master of ceremonies for the awards and presentations.

The subject of a dinner such as this has been discussed for some time," Kuhn said. "I'm sure it will become a permanent fixture. We expect it to be a big success."

National League president Bill Terry, baseball's only Charles Feeney and ex-New York Yankee manager Casey Stengel attended Kuhn's news conference.

The winners of seven awards will be announced at the dinner. They are:

Player of the year, pitcher of the year, defensive player of the year, manager of the year, minor league player of the year, major league executive of the year and the player who best typifies the game on and off the field.

The selections will be made by special committees.

Open to the public at $50 per ticket, the dinner is scheduled in the 1,200-seat International Ballroom at the Beverly Hilton. In addition to the seven awards, the World Series ration with the major league Baseball Writers Association of America will be presented to Jerold Hoffberger, chairman of the board of the world champion Baltimore Orioles and Baltimore manager Earl Weaver.

The dinner also will recognize as this has been declared for the 1970 National and American League batting, home run, RBI and pitching champions.

Special honors will be paid to Ted Williams, George Sisler Stan Musial, Hank Aaron and Willie Mays, the sport's only living 3,000-hit performers.

Kuhn also disclosed that baseball star Sadaharu Oh and Toru Shoriki, president of the Tokyo Giants, will be honored.

Segments of the dinner will be carried on Hope's April Special on NBC-TV.

Samuels Would Serve As Offtrack Consultant

NEW YORK (UPI)—The president of the city's Offtrack Betting Corp. Thursday proposed acting as a consultant for a fee to other cities wishing to set up offtrack betting systems.

Howard J. Samuels made the proposal in an appearance before the city council at City Hall.

Samuels said that 17 other cities have made inquiries to New York City about the operation of its infant offtrack betting operation. He said there has been free exchange of information but that if New York City is asked to go and actually help some other community set up its offtrack betting operation, there is no reason why it should not charge that city a fee as a consultant.

He also said the city's offtrack betting computer could easily also be used by other communities, and he saw no reason why the city should not charge a fee.

DiVicenzo Cards 64 But Australia Leads

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) —If the Australians feel as "bloody good" on Friday the 13th as they did on Thursday, then 42 other golf teams from around the world can ount themselves mighty unlucky.

Aussies David Graham and Bruce Devlin humbled the par-72 Jockey Club Course in the opening round of the 1970 World Cup tournament with a 65 and 66 respectively to take a three-stroke team lead over Argentina at 13 under par.

Graham and Devlin were scheduled to tee off early Friday to try and open their lead over the Argentines and David Stockton-Lee Trevino of the United States and to go after the individual lead of Argentine Roberto de Vicenzo.

De Vicenzo fired a sizzling 8-under-par 64 Thursday while his partner in the two-man team play, Vicente Fernandez, carded a 70 to put the team 10-under-par.

The United States came next at seven-under-par with both Trevino (70 and Stockton (67) complaining about the greens.

"I've seen some bad greens", said Trevino on the 17th, "but never anything like this." The usually-chipper crowd-pleaser hardly smiled when his ball rolled into an ant hill on the 15th fairway and he needed an official ruling to move it.

Scotland (Ronnie Shade at 68 and George Will at 71) and New Zealand (Brian Boys, 69, and John Lister, 71) were the only others pressing the United States for third place.

One stroke behind New Zealand at 141 were Holland, Denmark and England.

In the battle for individual honors, Hsieh Min Nan of Nationalist China fired a 66 on Thursday and Stockton and Henrik Lund of Denmark were right behind with 67s.

Allan Henning of South Africa, Manuel Camacho of Puerto Rico and Shade had 68's while U.S. Open champ Tony Jacklin of England shared 69 with three others.

Lund scored a hole-in-one on the par-three 12th hole. He used a 4-iron to pop his ball into the cup on one bounce on the 176-yard hole. He wor a gold wrist watch for his efforts.

While Devlin was saying "there's not a five on either of our score cards—and you won't see that again for a long time," the Romanian team was compiling a rather unusual scorecard of its own.

It was a horrible day for the only Communist country entered. Fifty-seven-year-old Paul Toita, chewing on a pipe, fired an 85 an his teammate, Dumitru Munteanu, a 93 to finish 34 over par.

"I never stop trying," said the jocular Tomita. "I tell my pupils at the golf club home: 'Never lose sight of the fact that this is a game.'"

Major Hoople Sees NFA Winning, 22-6

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Fearless Forecaster

HOOPLE MANOR

Egad! My dear, dear faithful reading public. How it grieves me to come to the end of the trail for another season for pulsating picks and scintillating selections for the local high school football games. I have enjoyed this season immensely and it has been good to me.

Last week's five for seven and .714 per cent gives me a total of 41 right and 16 wrong for a winning per cent of .719. Not bad, not bad at all, even if I do say so myself. Haarrumphh!

I have one more chance for one more correct guess, er peerless prognostication on the local level. That game is the Kingston-Newburgh encounter at Newburgh this Saturday. Kickoff time for the tilt will be 1:30 and there is a good chance that Yours Truly will make the scene. Especially since my beloved wife Martha thinks it would be a good day for leaf raking. She has no sense of propriety, that girl. Ha-kaff, kaff, kaff.

NEWBURGH 22, KHS 6

I would so like to score this one as an upset: But, I have to go with the Goldbacks and "Pistol Pete" Petrillo, their fine quarterback. Anyway, what selector in his right mind would pick the third-ranked team in the State to lose to a squad that is 0-7? It could happen. I'd like to see it happen. But, it just won't. Again the Maroons will be right in there, but NFA's balanced attack will overpower them. Ha-kaff, kaff, kaff.

On the national scene, there are some exciting games on tap and, since my record in that department has been a fairly sound 298 right, 130 wrong with five ties for an even .700, let's see what we have in store this week.

The Ohio State Buckeyes 7-0 and the Wolverines of Michigan are running at full tilt on a collision course for their showdown Nov. 21. OHS will beat the Boilermakers, 26-12 while Michigan will stomp Iowa, 47-0.

Another very interesting battle pits invading Georgia Tech (6-2) against Notre Dame, 7-0. The Fighting Irish had some trouble with Tech at Atlanta last season but will have no trouble in the shadow of the Golden Dome. Notre Dame 44, Georgia Tech 15.

Texas with 27 straight wins and Toledo boasting 20 in a row should add to their respective strings. The Hoople System sees Texas winning another close Southwest Conference clash, 27-17 over TCU.

Toledo's Rockets have too many bombs for the Dayton Fliers and should triumph rather easily, 30-11.

Last week, we gave you Oregon to bounce the Air Force Falcons from the ranks of the unbeaten—and true to our prediction the Ducks shot down the Air Force eleven in a rousing fight, 46-35 — har-rumphh! This week it will be the Falcons turn to play giant killer as they bounce back against the Jim Plunkett-led Stanford Indians, 28-25.

The Ducks will go on quacking at Michie Stadium where they will sink the Army 33-13. Just to keep all the service academies in prospectus, Villanova will down Navy 17-10. Ahhh for the days of Pete Dawkins and Roger Staubach.

Here are a few other picks to tickle your fancy:

Arkansas 15, SMU 8
Auburn 26, Georgia 21
Dartmouth 39, Cornell 22
Florida St. 17, Va. Tech 14
Harvard 47, Brown 6
Oklahoma 27, Kansas 12
LSU 37, Miss. St. 0
Alabama 40, Miami-Fla. 20
Mich. State 32, Minnesota 21
Nebraska 41, Kansas St. 29
Columbia 22, Penn. 15
Penn St. 37, Ohio U. 17
Boston College 28, Pitt. 20
Washington 35, UCLA 28
Syracuse 21, West Va. 20
Yale 17, Princeton 10

Amateur Wrestling Slated at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ

Wrestling until the wee hours of the morning will be the bill of fare at the Academy Gardens, otherwise known as the Academy Theatre, starting Saturday night at the stroke of midnight. The Academy is located on North Chestnut Street.

Many of the wrestlers on the card will be making their debut at the Saturday night event. The novices include Gene (Geno the Gentle) Hines, Don (Magnificent Moot) Bellinger, Tom Pine and Bob Schuyler. Other wrestlers will bring considerable experience to the Academy Garden mats. For example, 190-pound George Montgomery was a wrestling instructor in the United States Air Force.

Tickets for the event can be purchased at the door, with proceeds to be donated to civic charities.

Fencers Open Club To All

KINGSTON — A call has been made for experienced area fencers to join the newly formed Kingston Fencer's Club.

Club President, George Gallagher, says the amateur group is open to men and women of all ages to "provide a meeting place and identity" for indulgers in the sport.

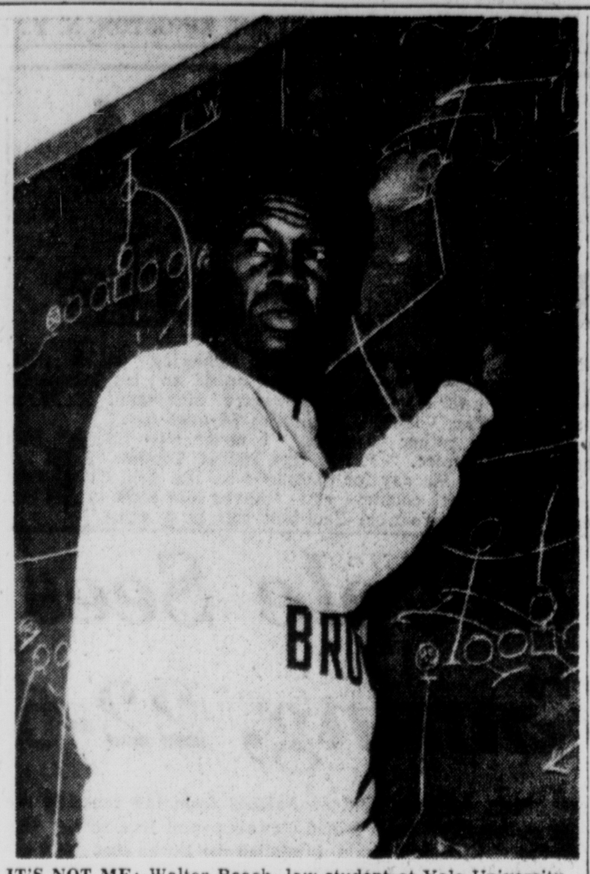

The Club will fence with foil, sabre, and epee. Initially non-electrical equipment will be used, but Gallagher sees the institution of electrical implements in the future.

Meetings are held on Wednesdays, except holidays, in the Finn School Gym, Mary's Avenue, this city, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Pappas Signs

CHICAGO (UPI)—Right hander Milt Pappas has returned his signed 1971 contract to the Chicago Cubs, becoming the first Cub to agree to terms for next year.

IT'S NOT ME: Walter Beach, law student at Yale University and former Cleveland Brown cornerback, denies any involvement in current legal action in Cleveland where a federal grand jury is to investigate possible anti-trust violations in the NFL. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Only Anti-Trust Is Involved in Inquiry

CLEVELAND (UPI) —The Justice Department said Thursday that next week's Grand Jury investigation of the National Football League involves only possible antitrust violations and "excludes any other areas of speculation, such as organized crime."

Only a few NFL teams remained to be subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury beginning her next week.

Boston, Miami, Houston, Oakland and Washington were the only teams left that had not received subpoenaes to have a representative bring records of personnel matters, such as contracts, waivers and histories of such transactions before the Grand Jury.

Before the end of the week, all 26 NFL teams are expected to be subpoenaed. The NFL also has been ordered to provide its records for the proceedings.

A spokesman for the antitrust division of the Justice Department in Washington said, "There is a Grand Jury. It is an antitrust Grand Jury and it is a conventional antitrust proceeding involving only possible antitrust violations. That excludes any other areas of speculation, such as organized crime."

Dave Soutar Fourth PBA $ Winner

AKRON, Ohio — Dave Soutar has upped his 1970 earnings to $37,019, but the Gilroy, Calif. veteran still trails Mike McGrath of El Cerrito, Calif., by a considerable margin in the official money standings of the Professional Bowlers Association.

Soutar earned $3,000 for his thrilling victory in the Lincoln Open bowling tournament last weekend, but McGrath, by finishing 13th, earned another $700 and shows $48,749 for his 29 tournament performances this year. And it perpetuated a remarkable record in that the skinny lefthander was appearing in his ninth consecutive PBA match play finale.

Nelson Burton Jr., who like Soutar has four championships to his credit this year, picked up $1,050 for his sixth-place finish and remains in second place with $43,460, more than $5,000 behind the leaders.

Still in third place, although he failed to cash at Lincoln, is Don Johnson of Akron with $41,320.

The top ten:

Name	Tour	Amt.
1. Mike McGrath	29	$48,759
2. Nelson Burton Jr.	28	43,460

FBI Makes Arrest In Panther Raid

BUFFALO (AP)—FBI agents and city detectives raided the fortified headquarters of a Black Panther-allied group Thursday, arrested a Baltimore man on a fugitive warrant and confiscated a weapons cache.

Authorities said Sherry Lynn Brown, 22, was taken into custody on a federal warrant charging interstate flight to avoid prosecution for assault with intent to murder.

Brown was not armed and offered no resistance, they said. Another man was in the building but was not arrested.

Karl L. Brouse, special agent in charge of the FBI's Buffalo office, said the federal warrant had been obtained Oct. 9 at the request of Baltimore authorities, who had issued their own warrant Sept. 30.

Brown, he said, had been accused of assaulting Eugene Leroy Anderson of Baltimore.

Authorities in Baltimore said Anderson's skeletal remains were found in a city park last April and that 12 persons they identified as Black Panthers were rounded up the following month and charged in his death.

Five others, including Brown, were being sought as state witnesses in the case, they said.

It was not explained immediately why the assault charge had been lodged against the bearded Brown.

Investigators said Brown had been sought in Buffalo for a month and was traced only Thursday to the offices of the National Committee to Combat Fascism, which they described as the organizing arm of the Black Panther party.

Detective Joseph Giambra said that although the headquarters had been sandbagged and barricaded, the raiders had no trouble entering.

"The sign on the door said, 'Welcome, come in'," he said. "We did."

Brown was to be arraigned today by a U.S. commissioner.

Investigators said they seized seven loaded rifles, five shotguns and a "sizeable quantity" of ammunition and said the weapons would be put through ballistics tests.

Agriculture Department Gets Election Loss Blame

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several Republican congressmen who lost election bids Nov. 3 are blaming an Agriculture Department handout on farm parity for contribution to their defeat, sources say.

That handout—issued four days before the election—showed parity at a 37-year low. It was seized by Democratic opponents as fresh ammunition against Nixon administration farm policies.

Just which GOP election losers are putting the heat on the department was not immediately known. Among the more prominent farmbelt House members who lost were Reps. Thomas S. Kleppe, R-N. D., Odin Langen, R-Minn., Catherine May, R-Wash., and Chester L. Mize, R-Kan.

Both Mrs. May and Kleppe are members of the House Agriculture Committee.

Parity basically is a comparison of the money farmers get for the products with the prices paid in the 1910-1914 period.

The October report showed parity was only 70 per cent of the 1910-1914 base period. It was the lowest percentage mark since December 1933, in the depth of the Depression.

Parity was rated at 72 per cent in September and it was 73 per cent a year earlier.

The level was particularly worrisome to GOP strategists who recalled that Nixon, during his 1968 campaign, continually attacked the 74 per cent parity record of the Democratic administration.

These words were hurled back at Republican candidates in many farm areas in the days just before the election.

Adding to the heat was the fact that the administration-backed farm bill still hung up in the Senate had been a heated issue in some contests.

And only one week earlier, Agriculture Scretary Clifford M. Hardin was quoted as aying "net income per farm is at the highest level in all history." Hardin, added, however, that farm income and prices were not as good as they should be.

The parity report is issued at the end of each month. The October report was issued Oct. 30.

First word on the Agriculture Department roasting came Thursday when department officials asked several newsmen how they wrote the parity story.

Asked for a reason for the request, the official said only "some interest" had been expressed by congressional sources.

Fire Sweeps Agway Plant In Albany

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A pre-dawn fire swept a fertilizer plant at the Port of Albany today, requiring units from six fire companies to fight the blaze.

A spokesman for the suburban Delmar fire department said the blaze, which broke out in a one-story warehouse and fertilizer manufacturing building of Agway Inc., had been contained. No estimate of the extent of damage was immediately available, he said.

Firefighters from the city of Albany and the neighboring communities of Slingerlands, Selkirk, Ravena, and Elsmere joined Delmar firemen in fighting the flames, he said.

A spokesman for Agway, which manufactures farm products, said the concrete block and corrugated steel structure was not totally destroyed but he could not estimate the loss.

City Escapee Returned to Rehab Center

KINGSTON

A 24-year-old Kingston man, who escaped from the sixth floor of Bronx Narcotics Rehabilitation Center sometime early Thursday, has been returned to the institution by New York City Police.

James William Clark of 65 Staples Street, was taken into custody by Patrolmen George Deyo and Junious Harris yesterday afternoon at the Benedictine Hospital where he had gone for treatment of a fractured leg and sprained ankle he suffered in the escape incident.

According to authorities, Clark had been committed to the rehabilitation center following his arrest by detectives last April during an investigation of a series of area burglaries.

Early yesterday, Clark reportedly escaped from the Bronx center by sliding down a rope from the sixth floor to the second floor, and then at that height he dropped to the ground and was injured. He apparently returned to Kingston by bus and later went to the hospital for treatment of the injuries, police said.

Following his arrest, Clark was committed to the custody of the sheriff until last night when New York City police came here with a warrant and returned the man to that city where he will face a charge of escaping from the narcotics rehabilitation center, authorities said.

Dear Abby

Won't Give Up Table

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were married in 1930, my parents couldn't afford to give us a wedding present, but in 1945 they gave us one—a lovely tea table. We used it for a while then I accidentally broke it, so I put it in our basement intending to have it refinished and repaired.

A few days ago a youth came to my home and my husband, without realizing the history of that tea table, sold it for five dollars to the boy who then sold it to the wife of a Navy recruiter for $25. When I learned of this, I went immediately to her, told her my story and she agreed to give up the table. (The boy also agreed to return her $25.) Then her husband told her, "Keep it." She saw an attorney who advised her that she didn't have to give it up.

Abby, I put little importance on material things, but my parents are gone now and this is one piece I treasured. I suppose in the face of world crisis, it seems stupid to be talking about a tea table, but perhaps the incident reflects the attitude of people today. Could you, under those circumstances, keep something knowing it was treasured by someone else?

MINNESOTAN

DEAR MINNESOTAN: No. And I don't know anyone else who could. It is hard to believe there are such people in the world.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I think I can help "TIRED" cure her overly amorous husband. Every time he gets lovey-dovey, go right along with his suggestion and ask for more. Before long, he will not get so lovey-dovey so often. At least, that's the way I cured my husband.

SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: I know exactly what "TIRED" is trying to say because I have the same kind of husband. If I just look in his direction he takes it as an invitation for an immediate flop on the nearest flat surface. But before you condemn me for my "cold fish" attitude, please read this thru:

For years I have tried, without success, to teach my husband to be a little more considerate, subtle, tender and patient. I would like him to kiss me, caress me, and make me feel that he wants to please me, rather than use me for his own pleasure. His crude approach leaves me cold.

I am bursting with affection. I kiss the kids, the dog, and the cat. I even kiss the parakeet. But not my husband, because he doesn't give me a chance.

FRUSTRATED IN SAN JOSE

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Please give "TIRED" a message for me: Women make a big mistake when they allow themselves to be trapped by routine. If you love him and he loves you, what's the matter with showing a little honest emotion at six o'clock and having a romantic candlelight dinner at eight, or nine?

My first wife had to have everything just so. First she'd put her hair up. Then she'd take off her makeup. Then she'd suds her undies. Then she'd check the doors and windows. Then she'd get into bed and read the newspapers! And by the time she was ready, I was sound asleep.

JIMMY

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

POOR BETH: (Q.) Beth and I have been going steady for five months and are thinking about marriage. We have no doubts about anything but her parents. They're too strict.

A few weeks ago she forgot to dust the dining room before we went out. She was grounded for a week. She is grounded now for two months because we went out on a school night. She was back by 10 p. m.

Today I got a letter from her. It said: "Now that I'm grounded and can't see you for a while, I want you to go out with other girls." I called her and said I wasn't going out with anyone but her. She said, "I don't want you to be sitting around for two months doing nothing." I told her again I wouldn't date anyone else. And I won't.

I can't think of anything to do or say to her, so I'm hoping you can help me. Beth is 17. I'm 18.—No Way To Turn in North Carolina.

(A.) Beth's parents may be using strictness as a cover-up for something else. Perhaps they don't want her to be serious about you, or anybody.

Anyway, you have a two-month wait. And even after that your future with Beth is cloudy.

Try to date other girls and have fun. You may find one you like better. If you do, the odds are that her parents will be easier to get along with than Beth's. Most parents are.

SLOPPY: (Q.) Why does my boy friend have to act like a starving elephant? I like a little kissing and cuddling, but I don't care about beating the world kissing record of 17 minutes 23 seconds. That's not all. When he's kissing me he puffs, pants, snorts, slobbers.—Fed-Up in Connecticut.

(A.) The best thing to do when you're fed up with anything or anybody is to stop.

(Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Only letters that include a stamped, self-addressed envelope will be answered.)

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: So many new arrangements seem to be necessary where all kinds of obligations are concerned that you would be wise to study them carefully. Get the advice of experienced bankers or businessmen and only with their approval proceed to make changes that pertain specifically to your security.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Tax matters, the expenditure or collection of moneys, careful analysis of finances all are fine today. See what can be done to add value to property. Relax tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Making demands of a personal nature on others could get you into real trouble today. Get out to the beauty or barber shop early. Then handle those business affairs with true efficiency.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take action to clear up worries early, but show that you are conscientious with others or you get bad results. Being more cooperative with creditors is important. Avoid extravagance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Show more understanding for friends instead of causing them greater problems. Await a better time for social activities or you could get into arguments. Get much done in a business way.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Being careful where anything of a business or personal nature is concerned pays off in big dividends now. Safeguard your reputation, too. Obey all rules and regulations that apply to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care you do not run off to far places on some business mirage while important matters are left unhandled. Get all the facts and figures necessary so that you get everything straight. Drive with care.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You want to run away from those duties ahead of you, but perseverance will bring fine results. Use good judgment instead of following hunches today, which are apt to be erroneous. Take time for social activities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You must meet associates at least halfway if you want to come to a perfect understanding instead of continuing to argue. Keep poised, though the situation may be rather combustible. Have much fun with mate in P.M. at some social affair.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Doing your work in a wise and efficient manner and listening to suggestions of willing co-workers brings results now. Not a good day for shopping for clothing. Wait until tomorrow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you show those you like that you do not take them for granted and are most polite, you make the future most harmonious. Get into recreations that are not expensive. Keep mate in fine humor by gentle manner with him or her.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Enjoy home delights without annoying anyone who dwells under your roof. Stop criticizing so much. Do something to make your own corner at the abode more charming and in keeping with your tastes.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Showing good friends that you understand their needs and wants and will help them in some way is good now. Working along with others is best today. Being the lone wolf, as it were, yields very little, especially in P.M.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those young people who is very stubborn, so teach early that it's pretty much of a give-and-take world and the sooner this is done, the sooner will life become more rosy-hued and successful. Also teach to give more than received to be on the safe side. The fields of banking, real estate, accounting, and similar occupations are fine. There is much love of the fleshpots here, so get the career started early and teach to be more moderate.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

The Rhino Special a Drag

NEW YORK (AP) — "Kifaru, the Black Rhinoceros," NBC's Thursday night nature special was a cram course on the life span and eating habits of a ferocious-looking, legume-eating inhabitant of Africa.

The hour program indicated the black rhino seems to be holding its own despite fears by some that it is an endangered species.

Canadian biologist John Goddard has spent six years in Tanzania and Kenya studying and making a census of the black rhino.

The opening segments showed him tranquilizing a number of rhinos to inspect their teeth and measure their horns. But for the viewer, the high moments came when the huge creatures seemed ready to charge the humans.

The television hour was pretty much of a drag in spite of efforts to brighten it up by showing the biologist's family life.

The day's big television effort was coverage of the funeral services for Charles de Gaulle. Once again, the live satellite coverage reminded one of the truly awesome dimensions.

NBC elected to broadcast the memorial Mass in Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris live, even though it started at 4:30 a.m. for East Coast viewers.

All networks used the excellent camera report of the French broadcasting organization, with staff correspondents providing individual commentaries.

NBC and CBS went all out on the coverage, using Roman Catholic clergy here and abroad to interpret and translate the proceedings.

Color cameras inside the ancient cathedral and in the country church from which the former French president was buried made it a memorable event. The cameras in the ancient cathedral moved in for close-ups of some of the world leaders attending the Mass—President Nixon, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, Prince Charles and others.

The contrast between the pomp of Paris and the simplicity of the Requiem Mass and interment at Colombey les Deux Eglises—live from beginning to end on CBS anl NBC—was in itself dramatic. Both Charles Collingwood of CBS and Garrick Utley of NBC provided knowledgeable commentaries.

ABC handled the ceremonies in one hour. It may have been wiser news judgment in terms of the interest of the American public, but it was a time when American television again was providing every citizen with a front row seat on an event he could never have seen any other way.

Opening lead—♥ Q

South looked at the dummy as if it were a rattlesnake, coiled to strike at him. Then he thought to himself that he should know better than to bid a gambling slam on Friday the 13th.

After that rather sad start he decided to see if maybe Friday the 13th might not be unlucky for East and West instead of him. Was there any combination of cards that might let him collect 12 tricks?

He had two ways to go after spades that would allow him to discard dummy's losing heart but it would work out really well for him only if he could make three of his spades into winners.

Therefore, he led a trump to dummy at trick two and tried a simple spade finesse. When it worked it was a simple matter for South to discard a heart on his ace of spades and ruff his five of spades. East produced the king just as South had hoped. The next play was a second club to his own hand. When both opponents followed the second hurdle had been passed.

He ruffed his second heart and was ready in the last step of the campaign to prove that Friday the 13th was only unlucky for the defense.

He played the ace and a low diamond from dummy. East dropped the king on dummy's ace, but that did him no good since South let East's 10 hold the second diamond trick.

East was down to nothing but hearts and had to lead one of them, whereupon South ruffed in dummy and discarded his jack of diamonds to bring the slam home.

ROUGH GOING — Three occupants of disabled cabin cruiser that smashed into the breakwater in Half Moon Bay, California, on Thursday come ashore by aid of lines thrown aboard the stricken craft by firemen. The cruiser, owned by Robert Livengood of San Jose, was putting out crab pots some 400 yards off the breakwater when she became disabled. Rescued with Livengood were his daughter, Dana, and Leonard Hartz of Cupertino. While this rescue was underway, three men in a whaler-type boat who tried to get a line to the stricken craft capsized in the surf and had to be rescued. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Nine Americans Killed

The Vietnam Lull Ceases

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist troops sprang back into action Thursday following a two day lull. They killed nine Americans, six of them in a single booby trap incident. U.S. spokesmen said today.

The spokesmen reported a series of small clashes between Allied and Communist forces around the country, including at least two ambushes and 15 shellings of Allied positions and base camps during the night.

Six GIs died and four were wounded when their 2½-ton truck hit a booby trap outside Quang Ngai city 320 miles northeast of Saigon. It was the worst such booby trap incident since Oct. 13 when nine Americans were killed and 20 wounded after they touched off a wired 155mm artillery shell.

The truck was traveling on a dirt secondary road on a "normal combat mission" when it hit what appeared to be either an antitank mine or a booby-trapped artillery shell, spokesmen said.

Elsewhere, two Americans were killed and two wounded by another booby trap in Quang Ngai province, and one was killed and six wounded when guerrillas ambushed a 25th Infantry Division unit southwest of Xuan Loc about 35 miles east of Saigon.

Another nine Americans were wounded in the ambush of an armored personnel carrier outside Tam Ky, 340 miles northeast of Saigon, and in a firefight seven miles northwest of Quang Ngai.

The casualty toll was the largest in two weeks for a 24-hour period. On Oct. 30 four Americans were killed and 27 wounded in two clashes in the central highlands.

In Phnom Penh, a government spokesman said today the largest allied operation in Cambodia in more than four months ended in failure with at least part of the troops involved returning to South Vietnam. The operation had been centered at Tonle Bati, about 15 miles south of Phnom Penh, and ran for five days without any significant contact with Communist forces.

Ky Visit to Include LBJ

WASHINGTON (UPI) —South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky's visit to the United States will include a tour of some U.S. military bases and a visit to former President Lyndon B. Johnson, diplomatic sources report.

The official schedule for Ky's two and one-half week visit has not been made public by the State Department, apparently because officials fear possible antiwar demonstrations. The visit is an informal and unofficial one, and the administration so far has announced only that Ky will arrive in New York Sunday.

Sources said, however, Ky would be accompanied by a party of 12, including Gen. Tran Van Minh, commander-in-chief of Vietnam's air force. They will spend the first week of the visit touring military bases where South Vietnamese soldiers train.

Ky had planned to visit the United States earlier in the fall to attend a March for Victory rally. The adminjstration dissuaded him from coming, however, because it feared possible disruptions.

There are 4,000 Vietnamese military men undergoing training in this country at more than 80 installations.

Ky trained at Maxwell Air Force Base, near Montgomery, Ala., and the sources said he was anxious to return there. Other bases he has expressed an interest in visiting were Lackland AFB and Ft. Walters in Texas; Hunter AFB in Georgia; and Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

He will also meet with Johnson during his tour, according to the sources.

Israel Devises New Peace Plan

By United Press International

Israel has devised a new Middle East peace plan in which it would pull its troops back from the Suez Canal far enough to permit Egypt to reopen the waterway to reoccupy Suez towns, the London Daily Express said Thursday.

The Express said the withdrawal would nullify the effect of the buildup of limited-range Soviet missiles on the west side of the canal.

He said King Hussein of Jordan has privately approved the plan and Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan will fly to Washington next month to discuss the military implications.

Egypt has insisted in the past that any peace agreement must include Israeli withdrawal from all Arab territories seized in the 1967 Middle East war.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat told delegates of the Arab Socialist Union in Cairo Thursday night that Egypt had strengthened its position along the canal during the cease-fire.

"We did not leave Israel to fortify its positions and content ourselves with watching," Sadat said. "We have benefited a good deal from the cease-fire and the effects of this will show themselves at the right time."

Sadat accused the United States of launching a war of nerves against Egypt and cited U.S. naval activity in the Mediterrancan as an example.

"The President (Nixon) himself was aboard an aircraft carrier watching maneuvers in the Mediterranean," he said. "American guns were being fired by the President in Naples that we may hear them in Cairo."

In Washington, meanwhile, France can be expected to cancel deliveries of supersonic Mirage fighter-bombers to Libya if they would fall into Egyptian hands as a result of the newly announced federation of Egypt, Libya, and the Sudan, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources, familiar with the French-Libyan contract, said a provision was made at the time of the agreement to prohibit the transfer of the aircraft to third countries or for offensive use against Israel.

France concluded a contract with Libya in January to supply 100 Mirage fighter-bombers to the Libyan government between 1970 and 1974.

The diplomatic sources said so far no aircraft have been delivered. They added the French government would keep a very close eye on their use.

Diplomatic experts here are trying to assess the nature of the new federation.

So far the experts contend they have little information on the nature of the federation but their preliminary assessment is that it is likely to be a rather loose union of states.

'Big 3' Settlement Likely After Jan. 1

DETROIT (UPI)—With the General Motors-United Auto Workers agreement now subject to ratification by union locals, it seemed likely today full settlement of contracts with the automotive "Big Three" won't come until after New Year's Day.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock made it clear Thursday he has no plans to take the package, tentatively agreed upon Wednesday and recommended for ratification Thursday, to Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. until after it is ratified by GM workers.

The union's 350-member GM Council followed Woodcock's recommendation and approved the new pact on a four-to-one show-of-hands vote, although he said it fell short of his expectations.

January Deadline Seen

The vote was the first step necessary in the union's process leading to ratification by the 375,000 UAW members at GM who have now been off the job 60 days. The rank-and-file members will begin balloting next week with a deadline set for Nov. 20.

As it did when GM was the strike target, the union will set a strike deadline for the other companies. With Thanksgiving ahead and two weeks of bargaining time usually allowed before setting a strike deadline, that deadline either would have to be around Dec. 15 or after the beginning of the new year.

The union is not likely to set a deadline that could take workers off the job before Christmas.

What GM Offered

The tentative agreement recommended for ratification includes an average 51-cent an hour, first-year wage increase, removal of the ceiling on the cost-of-living allowance and a compromise on the union's "30-and-out" early retirement demand.

Over a three-year period, the assembly line worker is assured a raise of 76 cents an hour. Under the new cost-of-living formula, there will be no limit on how high the increases could go. The first adjustment will be made on Dec. 6, 1971, and then on a quarterly basis after that.

Employes with 30-years' service will be able to retire at age 58 with a $500-a-month pension after Oct. 1, 1971. The pension will be reduced 8 per cent for each year below age 58. Effective Oct. 1, 1972, workers with 30 years' service will be able to retire at 56 with a $500-a-month pension, reduced by 8 per cent for each year below 56.

Hippie Winner— Post Abolished

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas attorney general has pulled the office right out from under bearded, long-haired hippie Phillip Hill.

Hill was elected on the Democratic ticket without opposition Nov. 3 as one of two justices of the peace in Lawrence, a community of 45,000 and the home of the University of Kansas.

But Thursday, Atty. Gen. Kent Frizzell said the 1968 Legislature abolished the office in 106 first and second class cities including Lawrence.

"That's going to be challenged," Hill said of the ruling. He said he had an attorney and that a Washington, D.C., firm also had offered him legal service.

The ruling was requested by Secretary of State Elwill Shanahan after county clerks in Geary and Douglas counties asked whether they should certify the election of justices of the peace. Lawrence is the county seat of Douglas County.

Frizzell's opinion said: "There being no office to fill, in my opinion, purported elections for such offices were a nullity. Local election officers should therefore decline to certify the results of any such purported elections, and where such certification may have been made it should be disregarded."

Hill, 22, a self-proclaimed dealer in drugs, received more than 6,000 votes in the election. He said he did nothing to publicize his candidacy for fear a write-in campaign might be started against him.

After the election he said he would use the office to perform marriages for his hippie friends, mending homosexuals, and hear damage claims of less than $1 in cases involving civil rights and pollution.

Snow Legislation Is Discussed

KINGSTON

The Laws and Rules Committee of the Kingston Common Council met Thursday night and reviewed various options for new snow legislation. Reportedly, the consensus was for an alternate side of the street parking ban during snow emergencies declared by the mayor not to exceed 24 hours.

The committee also discussed the proposed dew in the uptown urban renewal project. Action on both proposals is expected within a month.
